

BRITISH WIN SECOND LINE AT POZIERES

CAPTURE SECOND LINE GERMAN TRENCH SYSTEM ALONG 2,000 YARD FRONT ON THE SOMME.

VERDUN POUNDED HARD

Teutons Attempt to Wrest Fleury and Thiaumont From French in All Night Attack, But Fail Says Paris.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] London, Aug. 5.—The main German second line system on a front of 2,000 yards north of Pozieres, on the Somme front, has been captured by the British, it was officially announced by the war office this afternoon.

French Hold at Verdun.

Paris, Aug. 5.—The battle continues to rage north of Verdun with something of the old fury and generally to the advantage of the French. The defenders, after beating off repeated counter attacks by the Germans, again took the offensive and once more recaptured the greater part of the village of Fleury and the celebrated Thiaumont works.

All German attacks on the French positions last night were repulsed, says the French official statement issued this afternoon, the Germans sustaining heavy losses.

All Night Bombardment.

A bombardment of the most violent character took place over the entire sector of Thiaumont and Fleury. The battle lasted from nine o'clock last night until dawn. The Germans made unceasing efforts, the statement adds, to drive the French from the Thiaumont works.

Force Ruse to Retire.

Berlin, Aug. 5.—Russian detachments which penetrated the German positions across the river Sereth near Petrograd were forced to retreat, it was officially announced today. Near Medvedy and Tshistopaty, the statement adds, the Russians are taking a stand on southern bank of the river.

Slavs Cross River.

Petrograd, Aug. 5.—Russian troops have crossed the river Sereth south of the town of Brody and in the region of Penik-Tshistopaty and have consolidated the captured positions. It was officially announced today.

SAYS LA FOLLETTE IS ONLY FOR SELF

Jeffers Reviews Senator's Thirty-six Year Record in Address to Superior Audience.

Superior, Wis., Aug. 5.—Declaring that La Follette, during the entire thirty-six years of office holding, had been only for himself and had succeeded in nothing but the promotion of his own interests, Malcolm G. Jeffers, Republican, here Friday night asked an enthusiastic crowd to wake up and name a man for the senate who would be all for the people and not for himself and his party.

Sop to Catch Votes.

Mr. Jeffers outlined La Follette's stand on the embargo on munitions and his claims to be neutral and against the best interests of the country, and said it was simply a sop laid out to catch the German vote.

La Follette, during the entire time he has been in politics, has been crying out, "It's all wrong," said the speaker, "and he has been able to make anything all right by now, isn't it? Time to give somebody else the chance? This is your campaign as well as mine. I have never held a public office, and I don't care for one now except as I can serve my state and my country. There's only the honor in it for me, and not that unless I do my duty, supporting upstanding Americanism."

Mr. Jeffers outlined La Follette's stand on the embargo on munitions and his claims to be neutral and against the best interests of the country, and said it was simply a sop laid out to catch the German vote.

BARBER'S EXAMINATION IN MILWAUKEE NEXT WEEK.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Madison, Aug. 5.—Announcement was made by state board of health that state barbers examination would be held in Milwaukee August 7 to 10 and at 305 Wells street. One hundred and twenty-five applications to take the examination have been filed.

CAR STRIKE FAILS TO TIE UP SERVICE ON NEW YORK LINES

With the Aid of Strike Breakers, Loyal Employees and Police, Regular Schedules are Maintained

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] New York, Aug. 5.—Although strikes were in effect today on nearly every surface car line in Manhattan, Queens and the Bronx, with between 2,000 and 2,500 motormen and conductors reported idle, professional strike breakers and loyal employees were in the place of the strikers and officials of the New York City and County Railway said at ten a. m. that almost normal schedules were being maintained.

Police Commissioner Wood assigned a policeman to every car of these lines and except for a few minor demonstrations there was no disorder. Officers of the two companies asserted that fewer than 500 men had struck. The cars were late in getting away from the barn, which led to the belief early in the day that a serious tieup had been effected.

Philadelphia Strike Pends.

Philadelphia, Aug. 5.—Members of the Amalgamated Association of State Electric Railway Employees of America, were today waiting for a reply from the Philadelphia Rapid Transit company to the demands of the Association for an increase in wages and better working conditions. The demand was sent to Thomas Mitten, of the transit company yesterday.

Leaders of the Amalgamated Association said they would call a strike if the company ignores its demands.

Philadelphia, Aug. 5.—Because of great number of nomination papers that are being filed at office of secretary of state today it was necessary to keep the office open this afternoon. This is the last day to place nomination papers on file. Successful republican ticket filed papers late this afternoon as follows:

For Governor, W. H. Hatton, New London; Lieutenant Governor, E. F. Dwyer, Barnab; Secretary of State, Merlin Hull, Black River Falls; Treasurer, Alvin Peterson, Soldiers Grove; Attorney General, W. C. Owen, Maiden Rock.

Nomination papers for Robert M. La Follette carrying 4,500 signatures, were placed on file today. Other papers filed were those of J. W. Page, Elkhorn; democratic candidate for member of congress from the first district, P. C. Hendley, Beloit; republican candidate for state senate from 22nd district, W. J. Hunsche, progressive candidate for congress from 1st district, Rachael Lawrence, L. Cunningham, Beloit; republican candidate for the state senate; Julius Farnsworth, Beloit, democratic candidate for state senate from 22nd district, and many others.

DIG WEEK TO FIND THE BODIES OF TWO

Rescuers Recover Two Victims of Cleveland Tunnel Explosion—Seven Others Still Buried in Mud.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Cleveland, Aug. 5.—Bodies of two workmen buried in the explosion in the waterworks tunnel here a week ago Monday night, were recovered by rescue parties today. The bodies had been buried under tons of mud, and rescuers have been digging for a week to find them, after losing several days because of a lack of gas in the tunnel. There are seven more bodies in the tunnel, which have not yet been taken out.

SALT LAKE POLICE IN MEXICAN BATTLE

Kill One and Wound Two Mexicans Who Try to Force Way into Residence.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Salt Lake City, Utah, Aug. 5.—Joe Martino, a Mexican, was shot and killed and two other Mexicans seriously wounded in a spectacular fight last night following an attempt by three Mexicans to force their way into a residence with pistols.

At the house, the Mexicans opened fire, wounding a police detective slightly. The police returned the fire, killing Martino and wounding another. The third Mexican ran to a vacant lot, where he continued to shoot until disabled by the fire of the police. Both wounded Mexicans are expected to die.

TURK DRIVE STARTED ON SUEZ FRONT

FORCE OF 14,000 TURKS ATTACK ENGLISH FORCES ON WIDE FRONT EAST OF PORT SAID.

BRITISH LINES HOLD

London Announces That Attacks Have Been Unsuccessful—Warships Aid in Defense—Flight With Temperature at 100.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] London, Aug. 5.—British positions near Romani, east of Port Said, are being attacked by 14,000 Turks, according to an official statement issued by the war office. The Turks are attacking along a front of seven to eight miles, the statement says and have so far been repulsed. The text of the British official announcement follows:

"The following report timed 11:10 p. m. on the fourth of August, has been received from the general officer in command-in-chief in Egypt: 'Since midnight of August 3 and 4 the Turks, whose strength is estimated at 14,000, have been attacking our positions near Romani, east of Port Said on a front of seven to eight miles.'

"The position at dusk on the 4th of August, was that their attacks had made no impression on our fortified position. While on the southern flank the fighting also was going on in our favor and between four hundred and five hundred prisoners had been captured there.

"Ships of the royal navy rendered valuable service from the Bay of Tinnis. Fighting still was in progress when this report was dispatched. The temperature during the day reached 100 degrees in the shade."

An official statement issued by the Turkish war office on Friday stated that Turkish airmen had attacked British machine guns, British positions about twenty-five miles east of the Suez canal.

Romani is a village near the coast of the Mediterranean, and is twenty-two miles to the east of the Suez canal. It is a strategic point, and has recently been under attack by the British and Turks.

Report Slav Reverses.

Constantinople, Aug. 5.—Further reverses of the Russian army in Persia are reported in the Turkish official statement under date of August 4th.

C. W. PRICE LEAVES INDUSTRIAL BOARD

Inspector Who Has Been Responsible for Installing Hundreds of Safety Devices, Quits Commission.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Madison, Wis., Aug. 5.—C. W. Price, assistant to the Wisconsin Industrial Commission, known to managers, superintendents and foremen of large industrial plant in the state, is leaving the state's service to become secretary of the National Safety Council. For five years Price has been the chief instrument of the industrial commission in carrying out its program of accident prevention and factory sanitation, including ventilation and illumination. Through his work thousands of dangerous machines have been guarded and thousands of accident-causes have been removed for good. Farmers have been shown how to guard corn shredders and feed cutters to eliminate ghastly accidents, which were common not long ago. In showing employers how to protect against accidents, Price has extended his safety campaign into shops, through the logging regions and into stone quarries and lead mines.

WISCONSIN PROHIBITS PINE NURSERY STOCK

State Entomologist Announces Quarantine Just Established Because of Prevalent Diseases.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Madison, Wis., Aug. 5.—Wisconsin has placed a strict quarantine on the importation of all pine nursery stock, according to an announcement made by J. G. Saunders, state entomologist.

He said that the pine bark beetle, a pest to forests, which has been attacking pine forests in the east, has made its appearance in this state.

"If this disease should escape into the native timber it would rapidly spread and in a few years the growing of white pine and the propagation of new plantations would be hopeless," said Saunders, who is conducting the fight against the beetle rust.

"By the quarantine order importation of white or other five-leaf pines from outside the state into Wisconsin is absolutely prohibited."

TWO FATALITY INJURED; TWO POLICEMEN HURT WHEN AUTO OVERTURNS

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Chicago, Aug. 5.—Antonio Verdona was fatally injured and his wife was so severely injured it is feared she cannot recover, and three other men, two of them policemen, were hurt when an automobile in which the five were riding overturned here today, as the result of the breaking of the steering gear. The injured policemen are Walter Pelletier and John Carey.

Farmer Crushed to Death.

Niles, Ill., Aug. 5.—Henry Koepfer, a farmer, was found crushed to death under his overturned automobile near his home two miles west of here today. Marks on the road indicated his machine had overturned when he tried to let another automobile pass him.

Candidate Hughes Starts on Initial Campaign Tour

Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Hughes at their summer home on Long Island.

Republican Choice Starts Today for West Coast—Will Make Address at Many Places.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] New York, Aug. 5.—Republican nominee Hughes started his stumping tour today. It will carry him across the country to the Pacific coast and back again, with a few days' vacation sandwiched in between times, at some spot in Glacier National park, Montana.

Originally Candidate Hughes planned a dignified speaking tour with set appeals for votes in only a dozen or so of the big cities enroute to the Pacific coast. He expects to remain a day or so in each of these larger cities conferring with local leaders. But the moment he announced a transcontinental tour he began being bombarded with appeals from Republicans for speeches in their home towns—and today it appeared that Hughes would do a regular campaigning tour—rear platform speeches and all.

Four years ago Colonel Roosevelt established a precedent for liveliness in transcontinental tours and with Hughes has always been one of her husband's most trusted advisers and assistants in mapping political strategy and besides she wanted to see that he kept well, so it was decided to have her along. Governor and Mrs. Hughes, two secretaries, a messenger, the Governor's personal press agent, Carl D. Sheppard, formerly a Washington newspaperman, and a messenger will occupy one private car on the trip. Hitched on to this will be another private car for politicians, local committees, and newspapermen.

On Monday, Governor Hughes will make the first set campaign speech of the season at Detroit. Tuesday he will speak in Chicago, and then he goes to St. Paul.

START WIDE SEARCH FOR DETROIT BANDITS

Five Robbers Who Escaped in Automobile After $33,000 Hold-up, Are Still at Liberty.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Detroit, Aug. 5.—Search was being vigorously prosecuted early today in every county surrounding Detroit for five automobile bandits, who armed with rifles and automatic pistols, yesterday afternoon held up the motor pay car of the Burroughs Adding Machine company and escaped with between $32,000 and $34,000 after shooting and slightly wounding one man.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Des Moines, Ia., Aug. 5.—In a statement today the Associated Press George Condon, attorney general of Iowa, was authority for the statement that a gang of alleged swindlers held at Davenport to await action of the state grand jury has cleaned up approximately $100,000 in various operations in the state in the last few weeks.

RAILWAY EMPLOYEES ARE NINETY TO ONE IN FAVOR OF STRIKE

Indications Point to Overwhelming Demand for a Strike as Result of Vote Count.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] New York, Aug. 5.—When 5-6 of the ballots cast by 400,000 employees of two hundred and twenty-five railroad systems throughout the country had been counted today, it was announced that the men stood ninety to one for a strike.

"It was definitely stated by the four trainmen's brotherhood, that the count would be completed on Monday after which the final vote would be considered, and joint conferences with the railroad representatives held."

DRY SPELL BROKEN; MORE RAIN SUNDAY

Showers Last Evening and Today Bring Much Relief to Crops in Vicinity of Janesville.

The dry spell which has prevailed in Janesville and vicinity for several weeks was broken last night and tonight amounting to about one inch. Weather prediction for Sunday is showers, which will mean the salvation of the corn and tobacco crops.

In this section, since corn was beginning to show the effects of the drought, tobacco, which has stood the lack of moisture surprisingly well, will also be benefited and the late fields still give promise of a good yield. Pastures which have been badly cooked by the hot wave will also be revived, and with frequent showers will improve to such an extent as to relieve the milk shortage.

DELAVER FIRE DEPARTMENT ANSWERS THREE NIGHT CALLS

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Delavan, Aug. 5.—Delavan's new fire truck was called out for the first time this morning at three o'clock in answering a call sent in from South Terrace street. A barn belonging to a colored man was struck by lightning during the storm. The building was practically destroyed before it could be extinguished. It was covered with an insurance of three hundred dollars. Two more calls were answered in the early part of the evening. At ten-thirty o'clock a barn immediately behind the engine house caught fire. It was extinguished without much trouble and again at 1:30 o'clock it broke out again. The building was owned by Mrs. Charles Blanchard.

PLANS HARD FIGHT TO WIN THE WEST

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Stockholm, Aug. 5.—The Swedish steamer Commerce, 638 tons, loaded with 260 standards of batters contained to England was sunk yesterday at Soederhamm by a German submarine. The ship was carrying no contraband, and the Swedish government has protested in Berlin against them and other completed attacks on Swedish shipping in the Baltic.

TELEGRAPHERS GET A SALARY INCREASE

C. M. & St. P. Railroad Reaches Settlement of Wage Question With Its Operators.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Chicago, Aug. 5.—J. T. Gillick, general superintendent of the C. M. & St. P. railroad, announced today a settlement of differences between the officials of the road and a committee of the 2,800 telegraphers of the system, whereby the telegraphers were granted a flat increase in salary of three dollars a month, effective August 1.

The telegraphers asked an increase of 15% of their former salaries, which in some cases would amount to fifteen dollars a month.

INCREASE IN ACCESSIBLE MILWAUKEE PROPERTY NOTED

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Milwaukee, Aug. 5.—Milwaukee's tax accessible property has increased $10,000,000 in the past year; that is, the assessors who have completed their work found that much more property than a year ago.

Tax Commissioner Rodden estimates that a grand total assessment of $51,000,000 will be computed this summer for next winter's tax paying time. Last year the total assessment was $41,000,000. The $10,000,000 increase will add about $183,000 to the taxes to be collected for this year.

FIFTY BELGIANS ARRIVE TO SETTLE IN AMERICA

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] New York, Aug. 5.—A party of fifty Belgians, mostly women and children, reached here today on the Holland American Line steamship Noordam from Rotterdam. They are on their way to join relatives in various parts of the United States.

Chairman Wilcox of the Republican National Committee will open middle west headquarters within a few days, and plans to make a very hard fight for the control of doubtful middle west states. The names of Frank Hitchcock, former postmaster general, and A. T. Hart of Kentucky have been most prominently mentioned for the place.

REPLY TO CARRANZA TO AWAIT WILSON'S RETURN TO CAPITAL

President is Reported as Not Approving Proposed Limitation of Matters for Consideration.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Washington, Aug. 5.—The reply to General Carranza's note regarding the proposed joint commission to settle border difficulties, will not be formulated until President Wilson returns Monday from his week end cruise down the Potomac. State department officials said today there would be no announcement as to position of United States until that time.

It was indicated that Carranza's note is satisfactory, and that while not entirely satisfactory, Carranza's note is viewed as opening the way for broadening the scope of discussions by the commissioners as is wished by the president, and information has reached department officials, the note was intended to cover that possibility.

The state department has renewed its presentations over the imprisonment in Mexico City of L. A. Dunn, an American electrician, charged with having sold dynamite to Zapata bandits. The department also has made inquiries as to the charges against L. A. Dunn, Canadian manager of the Electric Light & Power company in Mexico City, who has been thrown into prison, according to reports sent to the British embassy here.

El Paso, Aug. 5.—General Gonzales, commandant at Juarez, ordered seven hundred cavalry men today to comb the hills south of that city in an effort to apprehend Mariano Amador, who with six men of the volunteer corps, deserted yesterday with the announced intention of joining Villa in the Maximilian district. Tamas was given amnesty by Carranza's government last December. In Juarez it was said he recently attempted to organize a revolt.

SWEDISH SHIP SUNK; PROTEST TO BERLIN

Vessel Was Not Carrying Contraband When Sent Down by German Submarine in Contention.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Stockholm, August 5.—The Swedish steamer Commerce, 638 tons, loaded with 260 standards of batters contained to England was sunk yesterday at Soederhamm by a German submarine. The ship was carrying no contraband, and the Swedish government has protested in Berlin against them and other completed attacks on Swedish shipping in the Baltic.

ROUMANIA ON VERGE OF DECLARING WAR AGAINST BULGARIA

Roumanian Minister Calls Attention of Bulgarian Government to Recent Incident on Frontier.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Amsterdam, Aug. 5.—In drawing the attention of the Bulgarian government to recent incidents on the Bulgarian-Roumanian frontier, such as the recent attempts of Bulgarian soldiers to seize a Roumanian island in the Danube, the Roumanian foreign minister, in a semi-official telegram received here today from Bucharest, said the incidents were "too frequent and not in accordance with the good relations between the two countries."

SEES G. O. P. RESPONSIBLE FOR OUTRAGE

SENATOR LEWIS CHARGES PLATFORM ATTACK ON WILSON PRECIPITATED CARRIZAL MASSACRE.

CONDEMNS MR. HUGHES

Democratic Senator From Illinois is President Wilson's Champion in Bitter Harangue.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Washington, Aug. 5.—Senator Lewis, the democratic whip, spoke in the senate today in reply to the attack upon the administration made by Charles E. Hughes in his speech accepting the republican presidential nomination.

Republican strictures upon the administration's Mexican policy, Senator Lewis denounced as "treasonable." He charged that the cause of the republican platform repudiating interference in the internal affairs of Mexico, was responsible for the massacre of troops at Carrizal.

Platform Invited Revenge. "Not until the captains of the republican party shot at the president of the United States did the Mexican outlaws shoot at the soldiers of the American president," he said.

The platform declaration Senator Lewis characterized as "a summons to Carranza and Villa to revenge the entrance of American soldiers into Mexico, and the interference of America in her internal affairs."

"It was the republican convention," said Mr. Lewis, "which slew the soldiers at Carrizal." He asserted that the efforts of the republican leaders to make Mexico the issue "without regard to facts, equity or justice."

"Revolt against the government at Carranza and Villa to revenge the entrance of American soldiers into Mexico, and the interference of America in her internal affairs."

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT.

A few months ago three leading men spoke at the meeting in Cleveland on the subject, "Things I Wish I Had Known Before I Was Twenty-one." G. Leonard Fels, the first speaker, gave answers sent in by eighteen men. Here are a few. Every word is worth reading:

1. I wish I had known that a living—what my life work would be.
2. That my health after thirty depended, in a large degree, on what I ate before I was twenty-one.
3. How to take care of my money.
4. The commercial asset of being neatly and sensibly dressed.
5. That a man's habits are mighty hard to change after he is twenty-one.
6. That a harvest depends upon the seed sown—wheat produces wheat, thistles bring forth thistles, ragweeds will spoil a good pasture, and wild oats once sown will surely produce all kinds of misery and unhappiness.
7. That things worth while require time, patience and work.
8. That you can't get something for nothing.
9. That the world would give me just about what I deserve.
10. That by the sweat of my brow would I earn my bread.
11. That a thorough education not only pays better wages than hard labor, but it brings the best of everything else; namely, the wholesome luxuries and pleasures of life, better folks to live and deal with, and best of all, the genuine satisfaction that you are somebody worthy of respect, confidence and the priceless gift of friendship.
12. The value of absolute truthfulness in everything.
13. The folly of not taking other people's advice.
14. That everything which my mother wanted me to do was right.
15. That father wasn't such an old fogey after all; if I had done as he wished, I would be very much better off physically, mentally and morally.
16. That it really meant to father and mother to rear their son.
17. What hardships and disappointments would be entailed by my leaving home against my parents' wishes.
18. The greatness of the opportunity of joy in serving a fellow man.

The International Circulation Managers' association met in convention at Grand Rapids, Mich., not long ago. One of the topics discussed was under the title, "I Wish I Had Known," and the first speaker related his experience as recorded.

The question was sent out, not to boys, but to men in middle life who had discovered through hard experience the limitations which retarded progress, and were honest enough to admit that deficiencies were due to neglect and excesses so common to the life of boys before they become men and self-supporting citizens.

It is an old truism that the harvest follows the seed time, as naturally as the night follows the day, but we never realize, until experience enforces, that there is no harvest, so disappointing and unsatisfactory as the harvest of regret.

It is estimated that one million new voters will cast their first vote for president this year, and assume, whether prepared or not, the duties of citizenship. This means that during the past four years this army of young men have arrived at the age of maturity and responsibility.

To them, the age of opportunity, referred to thus passed, but following close on their heels is another army of boys, their teens, who can study to advantage the answers to the question, "I wish I had known."

Connected with the school of experience—in which we are all pupils, whether we will or no—is the important department known as "observation." It is not a very popular department for men, because in our sublime conceit, we think that we know it all, and seldom admit that we are wrong when we stub our toe or butt our heads against a stone wall, and then discover that the highway is lined with cripples suffering from the same experience.

This department offers even less attractions for boys. Their life is so carefree and they are so busy living and having a good time, that but little thought is given to observation. It matters not how many physical wrecks in middle life are about them, as the result of youthful excesses, they never see them. They are physically strong and endurance has no limit.

They never study the young man who is struggling for a foothold, against great odds, because of limitations, and the word preparedness to them means nothing except the excitement of war, when the fact is that it represents the most important thing in the life of every boy, for life without preparation means a drift without a rudder, and a derelict before the voyage is half completed.

The boy who takes his first drink, not because he likes it, but to be a good fellow, and then follows it up with a social glass, every now and then, never expects to land in the gutter, or lose his position because of bad habits, but that's where the gutter snipe started, as well as the gutter who never arrives.

The generations as they come and go, are very much alike in character. They are so closely interwoven that they are like an endless chain. The homes of the land are producing more men than they did forty years ago, because there are more homes, but it is a debatable question as to whether we have improved or deteriorated. We have improved the old blue laws of the forefathers, and have become a race of free thinkers, and free actors to large extent.

The days have passed when the boy studies his father to any great extent, or aspires to follow in his footsteps either in business, political or religious life, and this is not always the fault of the boy. Time was when the boy inherited his political and religious creed, but today he is instructed to be independent in politics, and it often bothers him to find out where his father stands on issues.

The revolution in business, which has occurred during the past half century, has produced many radical changes. The day of the small tradesman and small artisan, is largely of the past, and the boy who is at all observing realizes the importance of adjusting himself to new conditions. The revolution may have stranded his father, as it has in many cases where seeking a new calling in middle life became necessary. This the boy wants to avoid, and he should be aided in choosing wisely for his life work.

But there has been no revolution in the political world. One or the other of the two great parties have been in control, and are likely to be for generations to come. They have witnessed the shock of Greenbackism, of Populism, of Bryanism, of Rooseveltism and La Folletteism. The independent voter has become a political orphan and drifted back to the fold. The boy of today can afford to adopt his father's political creed, as of old.

The religious world has also survived the shock of revolution, and while the spirit of liberalism has run rampant in some directions, the faith of the fathers is still preserved, and the church realizes as never before the importance of aiding the home in protecting child life.

The creed of the home is the safest family creed and the child should find his way into his mother's church as readily as he finds his way to school. The mission of the church is to aid the home, and it should be made attractive and easy of access to the child.

One of the men who wrote said, "I wish I had known that a man's habits are mighty hard to change after he is twenty-one." The habit-forming period is the most important period in a boy's life. The man who swears formed the habit early in life and this is usually true of the man who drinks. The cigarette fiend is found in the ranks of boys and young men.

We are all creatures of habit, and if we cultivate good habits early in the game they stay with us through the long journey. Many churches insist on their children attending church until it becomes a habit, and then take them into the fold and the church-going habit stays with them through life. The Methodist church increased its membership a million, in a decade, and eighty-five per cent of this increase was represented by boys and girls under eighteen years of age. Clean thinking and clean living result from habits formed early in life. It pays to cultivate good habits.

Another man wished that he had known "that you can't get something for nothing." Some people never discover this important fact, and so they go on trying to live by their wits, making no investment, living in hope of a windfall which is sometimes slow in coming, because the old man persists in hanging on long after he ought to be satisfied to quit. The people who get the most out of life, from every angle, are the people who make the heaviest investment.

Every answer in the list is a text for a sermon in itself. They come from men who have tested life by experience. Men who are honest with themselves. The warning signals which they hang out are worthy of notice and close observation, by every boy who is approaching young manhood.

The Daily Novelties

IT IS TO BLUSH.

Now doth he ponder deep and slow,
No more gayly shouting;
In wondering how he'll get the dough
For his summer outing.

"Oh Chaucer!" gurgled Chaucer, "I hate to disturb you at your work, but I simply must tell you about the handsome, competent new chauffer, who answered the ad. I grabbed him immediately."

"Grabbed him," hissed Little, who was the last word in jealousy.

And all the rest of the day he brooded on that beautiful Acetylyn alone at home with her handsome chauffeur. Handsome! Hah! Break away an hour earlier than usual he hurried home and stole in the back way. At the side of the house Acetylyn was talking to the new chauffeur, who was, indeed, a handsome dog. Little listened at the kitchen window.

"I'm so glad you like our car, darling," his wife was saying softly.

The chauffeur replied in a low voice, and Acetylyn gurgled, "Oh, darling, really?"

"Ye gods," howled Little, and rushed out, muttering his hair. "It's the end. The end." "Well, what's your name?" I demand to know!

Darling, sir, Henry Darling," replied the new chauffeur.

Suddenly remembering that it was their custom to address all servants by their last names, Little blushed a deep mauve and went and hid his face in the flower pot.

BOOSTERS GET BIG GREETING AGAIN ON RUN, LAST EVENING

Clinton and Shopiers Visited by Fair and Home Coming Boosters Last Night—Run This Evening.

"We'll all be at Janesville's big fair and home coming celebration next week," is the reply received from the many people in the surrounding towns and villages that are visited by the booster parties. Last night another successful run was made to Shopiers and Clinton. At both places the townspeople gave the party a warm reception and lined up in large numbers to hear the program.

Shopiers was first and as soon as the Bower City band struck up a tune, people started to gather around the scene of activities. M. O. Mount, chief of the boosters, delivered a few words regarding the Janesville fair and home coming. The famous Lakota club quartet and Robert S. Dailey rendered a number of vocal selections in their usual pleasing manner. The program at Shopiers lasted about a half an hour and from there the party made their way to the town of Clinton.

Several hundred people had gathered and were on hand before the entire party had arrived at Clinton. The quartet sang a few numbers and drew a hearty applause from the people. The Bower City band played a few music last night, which is true when ever they give a concert. Robert Dailey also sang a few numbers at Clinton and made a big hit. The close attention of the audience was held when M. O. Mount spoke a few words about next week's celebration. "The fair next week is for everyone," said Mr. Mount. "Bring the ladies, children, babies and everyone. There are comfortable rest rooms for the tired, a checking place for the babies, and a supervised playground for the children are features of the usual pleasant accommodations for the patrons of the fair."

Complete arrangements have been made by the fair board committee for two monster booster runs this evening. The first will run to Clinton and Edgerton as previously planned. At Clinton a big celebration, in honor of the anniversary of a church, is under way which will afford an excellent opportunity to tell the crowds of Janesville's big fair. The Janesville Military band and the Lakota club quartet will furnish the music for this party. The second run will be made to Whitewater.

When on the run Thursday evening at Edgerton, the booster party received a special invitation from Mayor Zull of Whitewater to come to his city this evening. He assured that a record breaking crowd would be on hand to greet the Janesvillians. The Bower City band, Robert S. Dailey, and a speaker of prominence will make up the party. Automobiles will be used to help the fair along by boosting should get in line tonight and accompany one of the two booster crowds. Last night four or five carloads of Janesville people made the trip to Shopiers and Clinton. Whitewater, like the greater share of the places that have been visited, is made up of an enthusiastic crowd of people and the Janesville fair is sure to draw many people from that vicinity. Wednesday, August 9th, will be the biggest day for the residents of Whitewater and the surrounding country. Their bases will be located to meet Port Atkinson in the morning (Wednesday) at ten-thirty o'clock. It is probable that arrangements will be made with the railroad company to have god train delayed to meet the booster party.

Monday's booster runs will be the last of the most successful series of trips ever staged to boost a celebration in this city. Burlington, Hanover and Portville are scheduled to be visited by one party, and if the present plans of the fair board work out, another run will be made to Beloit. Monday evening is always a big night in the line City and a number of factories pay off their men and the business districts are crowded with people.

Edgerton News

Edgerton, Aug. 5.—The 10:40 a. m. passenger train was about an hour late yesterday due to transferring passengers around a seven car freight derailed about two miles west of Madison. The wrecker passed through this city during the noon hour on its way to the scene of the accident.

COUNTY CANDIDATES FILE THEIR PAPERS

Nomination Contests for Sheriff, County Clerk, Coroner and District Attorney in G. O. P. Ranks.

Candidates for the nomination for county offices on the republican and democratic tickets at the September primary filed their papers today at the office of County Clerk Howard Lee. Every place on the republican ticket will be contested with the exception of clerk of the circuit court and register of deeds.

For the first time in the history of the primary election law in Rock county there have been nomination papers filed for the office of county coroner, two men seeking the place on the republican ticket—D. Frank Ryan, the present incumbent, and Lynn Whaley, both of Janesville. Three candidates for county clerk have filed—Howard W. Lee, candidate for re-election; W. B. Davis of the town of Janesville and Charles Sykes of the city of Janesville.

Three candidates for sheriff on the republican ticket had filed at 12 o'clock today and a fourth was expected to file later. They are B. J. Springer of Edgerton, Robert O. Whipple of Beloit and Alvah Maxfield of the town of Janesville.

Two republican candidates have filed for the county treasurership—Arthur M. Church of the town of Janesville and Samuel C. Burnham of the city.

For district attorney on the republican ticket R. A. Edgar of Beloit will oppose Stanley G. Dunwiddie of this city, who now holds the office.

Republican candidates for the assembly from the second Rock county district are: Albert J. Winegar of Beloit, who seeks re-election, and Charles D. Ross of Beloit. In the first district, Lawrence C. Whitte of Edgerton, who seeks re-election, is unopposed.

Jesse Earle, candidate to succeed himself as clerk of the court, and F.

P. Smiley, register of deeds, are without opposition.

On the democratic ticket there are no contests, the following candidates having filed papers: For county treasurer, Dennis A. McCarthy of the town of Porter; county surveyor, L. E. Bookout of Janesville; register of deeds, James McDonough of Edgerton; clerk of the court, Philip Sherman, town of Beloit; county clerk, Frank Hynes of Evansville; sheriff, Floyd Carter of Beloit; assemblyman, first district, Richard Valentine of Janesville; assemblyman, second district, Wellington F. Christman, Clinton.

At noon today there were no filings for either the prohibition or social democratic parties. County Clerk Lee stated he would be willing to receive nomination papers for filing up to midnight tonight.

"T HERE goes that telephone bell again," you say as you run down stairs to answer the call, perhaps the fourth time in less than an hour. Just think of the time wasted each day in climbing stairs, saying nothing of the great strain on your nervous system. You can stop that unnecessary running around—and save your energy, too—by installing an extension telephone in an upstairs room.

When the telephone rings and you are upstairs you simply step to your extension phone and receive the call—so simple, so convenient. And if you wish to call up some one, you can do so from either the upper or lower floor. As a fire and burglary protection an extension telephone is unequalled. In case of sickness the one shut-in can keep in touch with business affairs or relieve the monotony of the day by visiting with friends—via telephone. Once you have an extension phone installed you will never have it taken out.

Costs but 50c per month extra.

HYZER WILL RETURN FOR HOME GATHERING

VICE PRESIDENT OF NORTHWESTERN RAILROAD WRITES HIS ACCEPTANCE OF INVITATION.

M. G. JEFFRIS TO SPEAK

Republican Candidate for U. S. Senate Will Speak Next Thursday Evening—Joseph B. Doe to Be Present.

RECEPTION COMMITTEE FOR THE HOME-COMING

The following reception committee for the Janesville Homecoming celebration, Aug. 11, inclusive, was announced today:

Chairman, and Mesdames James A. Paterson, Jos. M. Connor, Allen P. Lovejoy, H. H. Bliss, Edward Amersbach, Louis Levy, Amos Rehberg, Geo. S. Parker, E. O. Kimbrell, W. H. Dougherty, V. P. Richardson, T. S. Nolan, J. A. Craig, D. W. Watt, J. P. Carle, H. D. Murdoch, S. M. Smith, C. S. Putnam, David A. Johnson, M. G. Jeffris, A. B. Matheson, Miss Sarah Richmond, Hon. John M. Whitehead, and Secretary P. V. Kuhn of the Commercial club.

Letters of acceptance to the homecoming invitations sent out by George S. Parker of the Janesville committee are being received daily, and a big gathering of former Janesville residents is assured during fair week.

One of the latest to respond is Edward M. Hyzer, of the Milwaukee and general counsel for the Northwestern railroad, who will probably make an address at one of the programs. Mr. Hyzer writes that he "very much appreciated the invitation and invitation of my Janesville friends, and hope I may have the pleasure of meeting them at that time."

Joseph B. Doe of Milwaukee, a former resident of Janesville, who was assistant secretary of war in Cleveland, and adjutant general under Governor George R. Peck, will also be present at the homecoming celebration. General Doe writes that he has not been in good health since the last time he was in Janesville, but will make an effort to be present on August 9th. He asks, however, not to be counted on for a speech.

Mr. Parker has received a telegram from M. G. Jeffris, republican candidate for the United States senate, who is present touring the northern part of the state in the interest of his campaign, stating that he will return to Janesville on next Thursday evening, when he will be pleased to make a speech. Mr. Jeffris speaks at Cambridge on August 10, and can arrange to arrive in Janesville that night.

Word came from Elia Wheeler Wilcox that she will not be able to attend and that owing to the recent death of her husband, Robert M. Wilcox, she is writing no more for the present at least.

Carrie Jacobs Bond was among the first to accept the letter of invitation sent out by the committee, and it will be recalled that she has promised to sing one of her late compositions for the first time before an audience. In addition she has offered her services as the pianist for the program, and will especially on Friday, August 11, which is her birthday.

There are hundreds of other former Janesvillians who are planning to return for next week's festivities. It will be a week of welcome and reuniting old acquaintances. From far and near they will come to see old friends and to talk of old times. The fact that this is the eighteenth anniversary of the city's founding, and that it is the first homecoming adds to the significance of the occasion.

The committee of the Commercial club which has the program in charge expects to have the details completed by Monday. The homecoming headquarters will be at the Court House Park, where a large tent will be erected for the reception and registration of visitors.

ANNOUNCE MARRIAGE AFTER TWO MONTHS

Miss Maude Finney and Kenneth K. Kennedy Wedded May 6th in Chicago.

Mrs. Kenneth K. Kennedy gave a dinner at her home on Thursday evening to several friends. The affair was given to announce her marriage to Kenneth K. Kennedy, Finney's daughter of Charles Finney of Lancaster, Wis. The marriage took place on May 6th at Grace Episcopal church in Chicago. Mrs. Kennedy has just completed her course in bookkeeping at the Janesville business college and it was for this reason that the marriage was kept a secret. The announcement came as a complete surprise to Janesville friends. They left on Friday for Chicago where they will make their home.

LIGHTNING TIES UP TELEPHONE SERVICE

Four Hundred Feet of Cable Burned Out on Franklin Street Late Last Night.

Between three hundred and fifty and four hundred Bell telephone company subscribers in the southern part of the city are without service as the result of lightning last night. A bolt which struck the trolley wire of the Janesville Traction company on South Franklin street and jumped to the telephone company's cable burned out a stretch of close to four hundred feet.

Three shifts of men were scheduled to work on the damaged cable and complete the work by Sunday evening. The entire section of cable was burned.

JUDGING COMPLETED TO EXHIBIT CALVES AT JANESVILLE FAIR

Three Winners from Each District of Calf Feeding Contest to be Shown at Janesville Fair.

Judging in the Janesville and Milton Junction districts of the Rock county calf feeding contest was completed yesterday afternoon by W. E. Markey of Madison. In commenting on the calves in the contest yesterday, Mr. Markey said: "Never before have I seen or judged such a fine bunch of young stock. Every one is of the best breed and the exhibit is on the part with those shown in state fairs. This is a great compliment for the Rock county young people who took part in the contest, as Mr. Markey is an authority on livestock. The judging of the Rock county calf feeding contest was completed yesterday morning at that place and in this city late yesterday afternoon at the Janesville Park association grounds.

Three winners from each of the district contests will have their calves on show at the big Janesville fair next week, at which time the final winners will be picked by the judges. The largest gain in weight in the whole contest was found to be made by the calf entered by James Wikom. During the six months his calf gained a total of 515 pounds. This is one pound better than that gained by the calf belonging to George Arnold of Rock Prairie. Arnold still remains the leader in the contest though, because his final marking is five points better than Wikom's. Many of the other calves in the four districts made remarkable gains.

Following are the winners in the four districts and their respective markings: Rock Prairie—George Arnold, old, 55; Erma Hall, 36; Gladys Morton, 33; Clinton—Frank Stone, 91; Frank Stone, 87; Wesley Moore, 86; Milton Junction—Lenon, 89; James Wikom, 89; Glen Carr, 38; Janesville—Lucy Kellogg, 39; Elmer Gestland, 38; John Whinger, 36. These nine winners will have their stock on show at the fair next week. The final judging will take into consideration the record of the calf and also the finer qualities of a prize winning calf. Thirty-six boys and girls were entered in the calf feeding contest during the past six months and all finished with a complete record. The contest was a decided success and next year it is looked forward to have a much larger entry list.

Following is a table of the Milton Junction and Janesville groups, giving the name of the contestant, the weight of the calf when entered and the final weight and the final marking.

NUMEROUS EXHIBITS FOR FAIR ARRIVING

Large Force of Men Busy Today Carting Exhibits and Stock for Janesville's Fair.

Wagon load after wagon load of material and exhibits for Janesville's Big Fair passed up Milwaukee street today and a large force of men were busy at the Park Association grounds getting things ready for the grand opening of the fair, which will take place on next Tuesday morning. Practically all the trains coming to this city carried consignments of fair exhibits, including horses, cattle, poultry and sheep. Owners of the big attractions for the midway arrived today and immediately commenced setting their tents. A large merry-go-round is in place and will be on exhibition for the first crowds on Tuesday.

Already a number of stock exhibitors are taking advantage of the extension of time on the part of the entry list. Secretary Nowlan is receiving new entries in this department daily. This entry list closes at 10 A. M. Tuesday so anyone wishing to show their prize cattle should get in touch with the secretary or E. L. Clemons at the Jackson block, within the next two days.

Workmen have completed the construction of a twenty new stalls for the race horses. More than one hundred racers will be on the grounds by Monday evening.

Local manufacturers and merchants are taking advantage of the "Big of Janesville" exhibit which will be held in the grand stand hall. This building will be open all day tomorrow and Monday in order that the exhibitors can get their stock in place.

ROCK COUNTY SAVINGS & TRUST CO.

FULL DOCKET MONDAY IN MUNICIPAL COURT; WILLIAMS' CASES UP

Judge Maxfield Has Seven Cases for Opening Day of Week.

From the list of legal matters scheduled for Monday in municipal court, Judge Maxfield's busy day. A total of seven matters have been listed thus far for consideration. Perhaps the most important of these are the two cases of the State versus Frank Williams, proprietor of the Northwestern Hotel at South Janesville. Williams faces two charges, one for alleged sale of liquor on the Sabbath, July 16, and the other for violation of the date of liquor code violation, and the second, charges of conducting a house of ill-fame. District Attorney Stanley G. Dunwiddie in the papers served on Williams, naming the period between July 14 and 22 as the time of the alleged statute breach. Williams is ready for trial in the first case. In the second he demanded an examination and the court set this for Monday.

Merton Simmons, arrested Sunday night by Sheriff Dell Chamberlain at Crystal Springs, picnic grounds for the robbery of the T. S. Welsh saloon on South Main street, and who confessed to the police that he was guilty of the crime, will also be before the court. When Simmons was brought up last Tuesday he was willing to enter a plea of guilty, but Judge Charles E. Lange could not sentence him, since this procedure did not come within his power as temporary judge. Simmons says he is ready to take a bit.

Merle B. Griswold, alias Merle B. Judson, the seventeen year old Detroit youth, who has been held since July 20 on charges of attempting to obtain money under false pretences, is also to appear. Griswold a week ago waived examination and entered a plea of not guilty. Louis Brown, a clerk at the Grand Hotel, where the youth lived in class since the first of July, and where he is alleged to have tendered a worthless seventy-five dollar check in payment of a sixty-seven dollar hotel bill, is the only witness expected to be called in the case, as Griswold's dealings were solely with Brown. The latter has been in the east for the past two weeks, but will be back Monday morning in time for the trial.

Two non-support cases are also on the docket, the first, an adjourned action, State versus John Clough, and the second the State versus Allen Taylor.

A civil action, Robert Brown versus John Sullivan, is also to be heard. Brown seeks one hundred dollars damages for injuries alleged to have been received when Sullivan's cow, chained to have been tied to a rope and grazing on a public highway, suddenly became frightened and running, caught Brown in the rope, throwing him to the ground with serious results.

WELL KNOWN COUPLE ARE MARRIED AT ROCKFORD

Word was received here today of the marriage of Mrs. E. M. Sartell of the Waverly flats and Adolph Grieger, 511 Locust street, which took place in Rockford last Wednesday. HEART AND HOME PROBLEMS

By MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON
Letters may be addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in care of the Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I recently broke up with a girl that I had been going with for five or six months. It was really my fault, but I didn't see my mistake until it was too late. There is a fellow who is not on good terms with me who would like to go with her and I asked her not to go with him. She wrote me that she had a right to go with whom she could go with and she said she didn't care to go with me. I am more than willing to let her go with him but I am all to blame and that wouldn't care if it were any other fellow. I have met her two or three times since and she treats me just as a lonely way. I would like to go with her again. What should I do? Try to and there is no other girl whom I think so much of as I do her.

WORRIED.
If I were you I would go with the girl again. There was nothing unusual or out of place in asking her not to go with a boy you didn't like, and she would have respected your wishes if you had said much for you. Find another girl.

Dear Mrs. Thompson. Would you please tell me the best way to remove moles and freckles from my face?

FRECKLES.
Moles should only be removed with the electric needle. Any other way is exceedingly dangerous. Freckles can be removed with some fluted glass made from two drams of oxide of zinc, one-quarter dram of suboxide of bismuth, one and three-quarters drams of dextrin and one and a half drams of glycerine. Spread the paste upon the freckles at night, before going to bed. In the morning remove what still remains with a little powdered borax and almond oil.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: There is a boy who used to live here and while he was here we went together. Then his parents moved to another city and he had to go too. He wrote to me every day at first and then he didn't write so often. I always answered his letters, but now he has stopped writing to me. I wrote and asked what he had done and he answered that letter and said that I hadn't done anything, but he was busy and couldn't find time to write. I love the boy and I miss his letters. What can I do to get him to write to me again?

LOVELY.
There is nothing you can do to get the boy to write again. Probably in his new surroundings he has lost interest in his old friends.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: One day I was waiting for a street car and it didn't come. After I had stood on the corner for some time a man in an automobile stopped and told me there were trouble about half a mile out and he thought it would be some time before another car came, and he asked me to get in and ride with him because he was going in the same direction. I thanked him, but said that I believed I would wait for the car.

When I told people about the incident they said that I was very foolish, because in a case like that it would be strange man's machine. You think? Did I do the right thing? You did the safe thing. The man was probably all right, but you could not afford to run the risk of going with him.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Should a girl go to a boy's house to dinner, if he asks her, or should she wait for an invitation from his mother?

ANXIOUS.
If he asks her, she may take it for granted that it is agreeable to his mother.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Is a red-headed person considered a blond?

RED.
A blond.

Answer.—Fissure is a linear ulcer or crack in the junction between skin and mucous membrane. It causes great pain, often imagined to be "piles." Blood streaks show on the excrement. Obstinate constipation is present from the inhibition of fear. Backache is usually complained of and sometimes general abdominal pain. If local applications made by the doctor fail to heal it, operation under a general anesthetic is necessary.

Ink and Itch.
Question.—Is there any truth in the common notion that ink will cure barber's itch or ringworm?

Answer.—Ink may cure ringworm of the body, but it is not a good remedy for ringworm of the beard.

The Most Acid Fruit.
Question.—What is the most acid fruit? I am an old rheumatic.

Answer.—Currants, if not lemons. But "acid" fruits are good for "rheumatism."

Household Hints

Cherry-Pineapple Marmalade.
Wash and pit cherries and put them through the food chopper. They will give considerable juice. In so doing and make the marmalade better. Peel and slice pineapple and add through the food chopper. Mix cherries and pineapple, using three times as much cherries as pineapple and add two-thirds as much sugar. Cook slowly until thick, stirring often to prevent scorching.

CANNED RASPBERRIES WHICH ARE LIKE FRESH.
After washing the fruit and cans put the berries carefully in cold cans in order not to break or mash. Shake down well and cover to the very brim with thin cold syrup. Proportion, one-half cup sugar to quart of fruit; put on rubbers and tops, but do not screw tightly. Place the wash boiler on the stove, but not over the fire, lay a cloth in the bottom and place the cans in a medium-sized boiler will hold eleven or twelve quart cans. Fill the boiler with cold water to nearly cover the cans. Heat the fire under the boiler and when the water comes to a boil let them remain on fire for ten minutes. Then remove caps. Screw down tops.

CANNING AND PRESERVING.
Sweet Corn Mustard.—Eighteen ears of corn cut from cob, one large head of cabbage, four red peppers, five onions, two quarts vinegar, two tablespoons sugar, one cup salt. Boil in some of the vinegar for twenty minutes, one-half cup flour, one-half cup mustard flour and heat to a paste with some of the vinegar (add after the rest has begun to cook), two cups sugar, one-half cup salt. Cook about twenty minutes, then can. This makes eight quarts.

Raspberry Jelly.—Strain three cups red raspberry juice made by stewing the berries and dripping them through a cotton bag, and two cups of red or white currant juice through a flannel bag. Put the combined juice on the stove and boil twenty minutes. Skim and add five cups granulated sugar (heated), using the same cup to measure juice and sugar. Stir lightly and steam. Bring quickly to boiling point and test often. Do not cook too long. If it seems a trifle thin when cold, set in a sunny window and cover for two or three days. Do not make jelly on a heavy rainy day, but choose a bright, sunny day.

Blackberry Jelly.—Take equal parts of blackberry and tart apple juice and pour through the flannel bag. Boil twenty minutes and strain. Measure amount of warmed sugar and cook till it sets.

Elderberry Jelly.—Take three cups of elderberry juice and three cups of elderberry juice and pour through flannel bag. Proceed as above.

Cherry Jelly.—Select a very mild apple to combine with cherries, as the cherry juice is very strong. Use equal parts of apple and cherry juice and proceed in the usual manner. All jellies are made by crushing carefully picked and washed fruit, stewing for a few minutes (as stewing brings out the substance called pectin, so essential in jelly making), then straining out the clear juice by dipping in a coarse bag, straining. Through flannel bag you insure a clear jelly.

THE TABLE.
Raspberry Cream Cake.—Yolks of three eggs stiffly beaten, whites of three eggs one cup sugar, one-fourth cup butter, one-third cup sweet milk, two heaping teaspoons baking powder, two scant cups flour. Cream butter and sugar, add beaten whites, beat all twice with the baking powder; last of all add beaten whites. Beat thoroughly and bake in three layer cake in a fluted, beat one cup cream until stiff, add three tablespoons powdered sugar, stiffly beaten white of one egg, and a half cup of raspberries mashed smooth. Spread this between layers of cake. Set powdered sugar over the top or cover with a plain frosting. This recipe is original and the cake is delicious.

MUSTARD PICKLES.
One gallon vinegar, two cups sugar, one cup salt, one cup ground mustard.

Wash fresh new cucumbers and drain them pour the above mixture over them. Use a stone jar that has never had hard in it. They will be ready to use in one week.

Elephant Choked by Frog.
A large elephant carrying tusks weighing nearly 200 pounds, choked to death on frogs recently in one of the provinces of Sudan while drinking at a pool. The batrachians were sucked into the elephant's trunk with such force that they lodged in the windpipe and shut off the air.

Anita Stewart Says

JOTTINGS ON WHAT I CONSIDER GOOD STYLE.

Of course a campaign of this kind must be entered into with deepness of purpose. Banners, parades, bands and the other assets of the campaign have no home in this undertaking. The work must be accomplished in the quiet way of the efforts of the girls of this country to have men understand that their honest friendship would be appreciated.

From the little tots, in public school, if you will listen to them on the streets, comes the old frivolous idea of children sweethearts. If a little fellow has shown the girl next to him in the schoolroom boyish courtesies, she immediately put their little heads together and concoct some hint of romance.

We next find this buzz of comment in high school, as if friendship between a boy and girl must be an extreme affair. But really basketball, football, the different clubs and pleasures, should do much toward giving the girl a boy's friendship. If you will listen more serious being involved. However, it is seldom so. If a young man happens to enjoy a girl's company and take her to more than one game or entertainment, in phrase, "keeping steady company." Sometimes it is most laughable to imagine this, but then again the fact is quite appealing.

And so it goes on, all the way through life from the tiny tots in the primary school to married men and women. And it is here that the question presents itself in all gravity. Because a woman, sincerely fond of her husband, finds some of his guests' presence of interest to her, perhaps through brilliant attainments, people immediately employ that horrible enemy to society, suspicion, and with it many times wreck happy homes.

Again and again seeds of distrust are sown in the minds of the once trusting husband because the wife may have encountered the man on the street for whom she has shown a friendly interest in her home. Nine times out of ten, "friends" are the sowers of these distrust seeds.

In the same way, to assume that a man is obligated to marry a girl because he calls upon her and takes her to social functions. One cannot blame a woman's society for seeking each other's company rather than the girls' if their attitude is likely to be misunderstood and a perplexing situation created.

Perhaps this sounds like an old grandmother's preaching, but the logical result is so very firm in my mind that the subject entirely possesses me. A reform seems to be needed in the social atmosphere to admit of mere human regard between men and women being accepted.

Somewhere whenever one of my friends shows a desire to offer me his friendship I accept it gladly. My every effort is to retain it and I am never so unhappy as when I fail. Let us, then, and all in this campaign, adapt our own attitude toward men, as our weapon, and refuse any peace terms, but the absolute admission that friendship, and no more than friendship, is our goal.

FRED T. HOPKINS & SON, New York City.
New York, Aug. 4.—Traveling made becoming. That's what the stunning new travel togs do for the busy little globe trotters. Hats, coats, veils, bags and boxes, they are all smart as smart can be.

The newest travel coats come in striking shades of tobacco brown, mustard, peacock blue and emerald green and hang voluminously full from narrow shoulders or narrow waists. Huge watch pockets are much in evidence and buttons big as silver dollars or even doughnuts.

Of a certainty, if your coat is peacock blue your toilette case must be that hue. These fascinating receptacles, when of the colored leather, are built like small suitcases, but the regular traveling bag shaped ones are all of either dark leather or pigskin and then lined to match your color scheme.

It were easier to enumerate what these Pandora treasure boxes do not contain than what they do. Everything pertaining to a fastidious feminine toilet is there. The complete beauty parlor to be toted at a glance in a red cap and be at your service by land or sea as first aids in your capture of all nationalities of mile.

There are, of course, hair brush, comb and mirror, clothes brush, hat brush and nail brush; a complete manicure set, an electric curling iron, soap box, tooth brush case and innumerable boxes and jars for cold cream, powder, rouge, scents and lotions.

Button hook, shoe horn and hairpin box also lurk in ambush. These articles are most adequate in ivory, more common in striped in black or gold, but an addition of luxe is exquisite in crystal, gilt and enamel.

There are the complete sewing kits, too, in either leather or cretonne covered boxes, so that you may start out en route and take the famous little stitch in time that saves nine.

For the thrifty traveler who loves to put out a little in the privacy of her sisterroom or hotel domicile there is a three pound electric iron that will turn upside down and let you heat water on it. It is made with a cord of wire, and the heat may be turned on or off, and it all packs up in a small velvet bag of nine by seven stitches.

For further aid to the traveling laundress come in the little silk or leather covered envelope cases containing half dozen tiny clothes pins, a stout cord wound on a flat card and two glass headed thumb tacks whereon to hang your line.

The wardrobe trunks have reached a pinnacle of excellence which makes them, with their hangers and drawers, as complete as your own closet and dresser at home, and the hat boxes of leather with handles so that they may be carried on your way, or the larger hat trunks fitted with padded head rests for six and eight hats and drawers for your hats, gloves and veils, making going away a convenient and comfortable as staying at home, and twice as fascinating.

SIDE TALKS

By RUTH CAMERON

"THEY THINK IT'S FUNNY"

One of my housemates was preparing to go to a reception the other evening.

As she gave her hair a final pat and drew on her gloves she sighed, "I don't want to go at all. I'm tired out, and I've got a splendid book I want to read, and I hate receptions anyway."

"Why do you go?"
"Oh, you know, Martin and Mrs. Winthrop I would go with them."
"They can go with each other."
"Yes, but they'll think it funny if I don't," she said. And so she went.

She Went Just Because She Was Afraid.
Not because she wanted to; not because she was under any obligations to it (it was a public reception and it didn't matter whether she went or not); not because anyone would be inconvenienced; but just because two women would think it funny if she didn't.

And she had a miserable time and got so completely tired out that she had a sick headache the next day.

But at least she had the satisfaction of knowing that those two women didn't think her funny.

The amount of unhappiness we cause ourselves and the amount of happiness we lose because we defer unnecessarily to other people's feelings is really appalling.

And the Child Caught More Cold.
Another woman I know of had made an engagement to attend a club tea with a group of her women friends. Two or three days beforehand her little boy came down with a light case of measles and she telephoned to break the engagement. Whereupon they scolded her for being over-protective and said they would be terribly upset if she didn't go. Finally she yielded, leaving the child with a nurse girl. He caught more cold, and had been sick ever since.

She has been worried over the thought he had fleas. George, five, was taking a walk with his papa. It was warm and his underwear was scratching him. He stopped and began to scratch himself. As he did so he said to his papa: "Do you know I have fleas?" "Well," said his papa, "what makes you think that?" This is what he replied: "When dogs scratch themselves people say they have fleas, and ain't I scratching?"

DOINGS OF THE VAN LOONS—But Grace Manages to Pick Up One or Two—Released August 7

"Never let us speak ill of a poor Pittsburgh millionaire," laughed Pope. "Scanda! must never darken the soot of that village." He turned as Slosson, the press agent of the show, entered with a bundle of photographs.

"Here are the new pictures of Lorelei for your story, old man," Mr. Slosson said. "Bergmann will appreciate the boost for one of his girls. Help yourself to any more stuff I'll supply it."

"Don't go to the trouble," Pope hastily deprecated. "I know the story. Now I'm going to leave and let Miss Lynn dress."

"Don't go on my account," urged Lillas. "This room is like a subway station, and I've got so I could change in Bryant park at noon and never shock a policeman."

"You won't say anything mean about us, will you?" Mrs. Knight implored. "In this business a girl's reputation is all she has."

"I promise," Pope held out his hand to Lorelei, and as she shook it her lips parted in her ever-ready smile. "Nice girl, that," the critic remarked, as he and Slosson descended the stairs.

"Which one—Lorelei, Lillas, or the female gorilla?"

"How did she come to choose that for a mother?" muttered Pope.

"One of nature's inscrutable mysteries. But wait. Have you seen Brother Jim?"

"No. Who's he?"

"His mother's son. Need we say more? He's a great help to the family, for he keeps 'em from getting too proud over Lorelei. He sells introductions to his sister."

Campbell Pope's exclamation was lost in a babble of voices as a bevy of "Swimming Girls" descended from the enchanted regions above and scurried onto the stage. Through the double curtain the orchestra could be faintly heard; a voice was crying, "Places."

"Some Soul Kissers with this troupe, eh?" remarked Slosson, when the scampering figures had disappeared.

"Yes. Bergmann has made a fortune out of this kind of show. He's a friend of the 'Tired Business Man.'"

"Speaking of the weary Wall street workers, there will be a dozen of our ribbon winners at the Hammon supper tonight."

"Tell me, is Lorelei Knight a regular—or frequenter of these affairs?"

"Sure. It's part of the graft."

"I see."

"She has to piece out her salary like the other girls. Why, her whole family is around her neck—mother, brother and father. Old man Knight was run over by a taxicab last summer. It didn't hurt the machine, but he's got a broken back or something. Too bad it wasn't brother Jimmy. You must meet him, by the way. I never heard of Lorelei's doing anything really—bad."

For the moment Campbell Pope made no reply. Meanwhile a great wave of singing flooded the regions at the back of the theater as the curtain rose and the chorus broke into sudden sound. When he did speak it was with unusual bitterness.

"It's the rottenest business in the world. Slosson. Two years ago she was a country girl; now she's a Broadway belle. How long will she last, d'you think?"

"She's too beautiful to last long," agreed the press agent, soberly, "especially now that the wolves are on her trail. But her danger isn't so much from the people she meets with as the people she eats with. That family of hers would drive any girl to the limit. They intend to cash in on her; the mother says so."

"And they will, too. She can have her choice of the wealthy Slossons."

"Don't get me wrong," Slosson hastened to qualify. "She's square; understand?"

"Of course; object matrimony. It's the old story, and her mother will see to the ring and the orange blossoms. But what's the difference, after all, Slosson? It'll be hell for her, and a sale to the highest bidder, either way."

CHAPTER III.

In his summary of Lorelei's present life Slosson had not been far wrong. Many changes had come to the Knights during the past two years—changes of habit, of thought and of outlook; the entire family had found it necessary to alter their system of living. But it was in the girl that the changes showed most. When Mrs. Knight had forecast an immediate success for her daughter she had spoken with the wisdom of a Cassandra. Moreover, she took naturally to the work, finding it more like play; and, being quite free from girlish timidity, she felt no stage fright, even upon her first appearance. Her recognition had followed quickly—it was impossible to hide such perfection of loveliness as hers—and the publicity pleased her. In due course rival managers began to make offers, which Mrs. Knight, rising nobly to the first test of her business ability, used as levers to raise her daughter's salary and to pry out of Bergmann a five-year contract. The role of the Fairy Princess was a result.

"You'll Pardon Us for Whispering, Won't You?"

Lorelei had arrived at the point where further advancement depended upon study and hard work; but, since these formed no part of the family program, she remained idle. Proficiency in stagecraft of any sort comes only at the expense of penance, and this girl was being groomed solely for matrimony.

With the support of the family entirely upon her shoulders, she had been driven to many shifts in order to stretch her salary to livable proportions. Peter was a total burden, and Jim either refused or was unable to contribute toward the common fund, while the mother devoted her time almost solely to managing Lorelei's affairs. Presents were showered upon the girl, and these Mrs. Knight converted into cash. Conspicuous stage characters are always welcome at the prominent cafes; hence Lorelei never had to pay for food or drink when alone, and when escorted she received a commission on the money spent. She was well paid for posing; advertisements of toilet articles, face creams, dentifrices, yielded something. In the commercial exploitation of her daughter Mrs. Knight developed something like genius. But of all the so-called "graffs" open to handsome girls in her business the quickest and best returns came from prodigal entertainers like Jarvis Hammon.

As Lorelei and her companion left their taxicabs and entered Proctor's hotel, shortly before midnight, they were met by a head waiter and shown into an ornate ivory-and-gold elevator, which lifted them noiselessly to an upper floor. They made their exit into a deep-carpeted hall, at the end of which two splendid creatures in the panoply of German field marshals stood guard over one of the smaller banquet rooms.

Hammon himself greeted the girls when they had surrendered their wraps, and, after his introduction to Lorelei, engaged Lillas in earnest conversation.

Lorelei watched him curiously. She saw a powerfully-built gray-haired man, whose vigor age had not impaired. In face he was perhaps fifty years old, in body he was much less. He had a bold, incisive manner that was compelling and stamped him as a big man in more ways than one. Playfully he pinched Lillas' cheek, then turned with a smile to say:

"You'll pardon us for whispering, won't you, Miss Knight? You see, Lillas got up this little party, and I've been waiting to consult her about some of the details. 'A lovely girl,' you to come. I hope you'll find my friends agreeable and enjoy yourself."

Perhaps twenty men in evening dress and as many elaborately gowned young women were gossiping and smoking as the last comers appeared. Someone raised a vigorous complaint at the host's tardiness, but Hammon laughed a rejoinder, then gave a signal, whereupon folding doors at the end of the room were thrown back, and those nearest the banquet hall moved toward it.

Hammon was introducing two of his friends—one a languid, middle-aged man, the other a large-featured person with a rumbling voice. The former dropped his cigarette and bowed courteously. His appearance as he faced Lorelei was prepossessing, and she breathed a thanksgiving as she took his arm.

Hammon clapped the other gentleman upon the shoulder, crying: "Hannibal, I saw your supper partner flirting with Handsome Dan Avery. Better look her up."

Lorelei recognized the deep-voiced man as Hannibal C. Wharton, one of the dominant figures in the Steel syndicate; she knew him instantly from his newspaper pictures. The man beside her, however, was a stranger, and she raised her eyes to his with some curiosity. He was studying her with manifest admiration, despite the fact that his lean features were cast in a sardonic mold.

"It is a pleasure to meet a celebrity like you, Miss Knight," he murmured.

As they entered the banquet hall she gave a little cry of pleasure, for it was evident that Hammon, noted as he was for lavish expenditure, had outdone himself this time. The whole room had been transformed into a bower of roses, great climbing bushes, heavy with blooms. The table, a horseshoe of silver and white, of glittering plate and sparkling cut glass, faced a rustic stage which occupied one end of the room; occupying the inner arc of the half-circle was a wide but shallow stone fountain, upon the surface of which floated large-leaved Egyptian pond lilies. Fat-bellied goldfish with filmy fins, and tails like iridescent wedding trains, propelled themselves indolently about.

But the surprising feature of the decorating scheme was not apparent at first glance. Through the bewildering riot of greenery had been woven an almost invisible netting, and the space behind formed a prison for birds and butterflies. Disturbed by the commotion, the feathered creatures twittered and fluttered against the netting in a panic. As for the butterflies, no artificial light could deceive them, and they clung with closed wings to leaves and branches, only now and then displaying their full glory in a sleepy protest.

"How—beautiful!" gasped Lorelei, when she had taken in the whole scene. "But—the poor little things are frightened." She looked up to find her companion staring in Hammon's direction with an expression of peculiar, derisive amusement.

Hammon was the center of an admiring group; congratulations were being hurled at him from every quarter. At his side was Lillas Lynn, very dark, very striking, very expensively gowned and elaborately bejeweled. The room was dining with the strains of an invisible orchestra and the vocal uproar. Becoming conscious of Lorelei's gaze, her escort looked down, showing his teeth in a grin that was not of pleasure.

"You like it?" he asked.

"It's beautiful, but—the extravagance is almost criminal."

"Don't tell me how many starving newsboys or how many poor families the cost of this supper would support for a year. I hate poor people. Now for the oysters and the hummingbird tongues. No doubt there's a pearl in every winecup. Prepare to have your palate tickled with a feather when your appetite flags."

"That's what the Romans did, isn't it?"

"Are you a student as well as an artist, Miss Knight?"

"I thought you were going to be pleasant, but you're not, are you?" Lorelei was smilingly fixed.

"I'm afraid you don't intend to have a good time, Mr.—" They had found their places at the table, and Lorelei's escort was seating her. "I didn't catch your name when we were introduced."

"Nor I," said he, taking his place beside her. "It sounded like Rice Curry or some other dish, but it's really Merkle—John T. Merkle."

"Ah! You're a banker. Aren't you pretty—reckless confessing your rank, as it were?"

"I'm a bachelor; also an invalid and an insomniac. You couldn't bring me any more trouble than I have." Again he looked toward Hammon, and this time he frowned. "From indications I'll soon have company, however."

"Indeed. Is there talk of a divorce there?" She inclined her head in the host's direction.

Merkle retorted acidly: "My dear child, don't try to act the ingenue. You're in the same show as Miss Lynn, and you must know what's going on. This sort of thing can't continue indefinitely, for Mrs. Hammon is very much alive, to say nothing of her daughters. Let's be natural, at least. I haven't slept lately, and I'm not patient enough to be polite."

"It's a bargain. I'll try to be as disagreeable as you are," said Lorelei; and Mr. Merkle signified his prompt acquiescence. He lit a huge monogrammed cigarette, pushed aside his hors d'oeuvres, and reluctantly turned down his array of wineglasses one by one.

"Can't eat, can't drink, can't sleep," he grumbled. "Stewed prunes and rice for my portion. Walter, bring me a bottle of whisky, and when it's gone bring me another."

The diners had arranged themselves by now; the supper had begun. A bohemian spirit prevailed; the ardor of the men, lashed on by laughter, coquetry and smiles, rose quickly; wine flowed, and a general intimacy began. Introductions were no longer necessary, the talk flew back and forth along the rim of the rose-strewn semicircle.

Lorelei turned from the man on her left, who had regaled her with an endless story, the point of which had sent the teller in hiccups of laughter, and said to John Merkle:

"I'm glad I'm with you tonight. I don't like drinking men."

"Can a girl in your position afford preferences?" he inquired, tartly. Thus far the banker had fully lived up to his reputation.

"All women are extravagant. I have preferences, even if I can't afford them. If you were a tippler instead of a plain gronch I could tell you precisely how you'd act and what you'd talk about. I'd die if I had to teach you the tango."

Mr. Merkle grunted. "So would I."

She smiled sweetly. "You see, we're both unpleasant people."

Merkle meditated in silence while she attacked her food with a healthy, youthful appetite that awoke his envy.

"I suppose you see a lot of this sort of thing?" he at length suggested.

"There's something of the kind nearly every night. This party isn't as bad as some, for the very reason that most of the men are from out of town, and it's a bit of a novelty to them."

But there's a crowd of regular New Yorkers—the younger men about town—she paused significantly. "I accepted one invitation from them. It was quite enough."

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Dinner Stories

A teacher in a large village school introduced nature study as a new branch in her classroom. She gave several talks on the trees familiar to the children. The maple, the elms, the spruce, and the poplar in turn formed subjects of interesting discourse. The manner of growth, together with the uses of the various woods, were topics assigned to the children. The observation of the pupils.

One day, Miss Brown tested her scholars on their newly-acquired knowledge. "Name three kinds of woods, and state one use made of each," she wrote on the blackboard.

To her utter amazement one answer submitted the following: "In our town there are three kinds of woods. First, there is Kelly's woods, used for pasture. Second, there is Atwell's grove, used for the dump. But the third woods is the best of them all—Mrs. Brown's Gully, used for picnics."

A young man was about to leave his home in Erin for a trip around the world, whereat his mother was greatly troubled. She held her peace, however, till he had started; she knew he was a great man; she rejoiced in his prosperity, but she was inconsolable as soon as he was out of sight.

"I'm afraid he hasn't the money to get back," she said, weeping. "He's got the money to go around the world all right, but will he ever get back?"

"Would you like to see your wife go into politics and be a boss?" "Certainly," replied Mr. Meekton. "I'd really enjoy having Henrietta step in and show some of these practical politicians what a real boss is like."

ISLANDERS WOULD WELCOME TRANSFER OF DANISH WEST INDIES

St. Thomas street, St. Thomas, Danish West Indies.

Concerning the early history of the Danish West Indies, the National Geographic Society issues the following bulletin from Washington:

Of the three small islands on the northeastern edge of the Caribbean sea for which the United States expects to pay Denmark $25,000,000, St. Thomas and St. John, both smaller and less densely populated than St. Croix, have been the scene of many thrilling episodes. Here white colonists of four nations followed each other with bewildering perplexity during the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries.

"More than a hundred years after the discovery of St. Thomas by Columbus in 1493, the island was wholly uninhabited, although its excellent harbor had been a rendezvous for Dutch navigators during many decades. When a handful of French colonists, survivors of a massacre on Crab Island, perpetrated by a band of Spaniards from Porto Rico, reached its shores in a dugout in 1647, they found evidence of an earlier settlement, but no clues as to the nationality of their predecessors or of their fate. These French wanderers were not disposed to brave a similar mysterious end, so they sailed on.

"At about the time that Peter Stuyvesant was establishing a representative form of government on Manhattan Island, some of his fellow countrymen were establishing the first regular settlement on St. Thomas. These hardy colonists met the same fate which overtook their brother Hollanders of 'New Amsterdam', for three years after the town on the island became New York the St. Thomas pioneers were forced to surrender to the English also. The latter soon deserted the island and turned to the more fertile lands of St. Martin and St. Eustatius, so that in 1673, when the Danish flag was hoisted, the island was a wilderness. The share in the colonial prosperity of other European nations, chartered the West India and Guinea company, St. Thomas, uninhabited again, was awaiting the advent of settlers who were to establish Denmark's rights in the island. With two brief interruptions, this sovereignty has been maintained from that day up to the present time.

The legend that St. Thomas was at one time the headquarters of the ruthless buccanniers who terrorized the Spanish Main for so many years is perpetuated in the names given to two towers still standing on the heights back of the seaport of Charlotte Amalie. On one hill is 'Bluebeard's Castle', while on an adjacent height rises Blackbeard's Castle. History does not substantiate the romantic tradition, and it is extremely doubtful if the buccanniers were ever in possession here.

"When the Danes arrived they were under very strict orders as to religious observances and with respect to a preparedness program against rival colonists. The first order issued by the governor was: 'Every person who speaks Danish is bound to attend services every Sunday in Christian's fort when the drum beats, and on failure of doing so is to pay a fine of twenty-five pounds of tobacco. Persons of all other nations are bound to attend services every Sunday afternoon at the same place, under the same penalty.'

"As to armament the order was: 'For the defense and good of the country every household shall keep at least every time twenty-five pounds of powder in his house for himself and every man in his service a sword with belt, and a gun with sufficient powder and ball, and also each household shall have two pounds of powder, or more if he pleases. Every person neglecting this duty shall pay 100 pounds of tobacco.'

"The order for the citizen army ran thus: 'On Saturday afternoon when the drum beats all persons who can use a gun shall meet at the parade ground full armed. Any person absent, in favorable weather shall forfeit every time twenty-five pounds of tobacco, which is to be paid at the end of the year for the benefit of those who meet regularly.'

"The shortage of labor during the first year or two of Danish occupation was overcome by the importation of many slaves from the God Coast of Africa. The laws governing these human chattels were extremely severe. Drum beating and feasts were forbidden and all slaves were required to be at home by sunset on Sundays. A slave transgressing such regulations was for the first offense whipped for the second his ears were cut off, and for a third he was hanged and his head placed on a stake.

"In the neighboring island of St. John the slave laws were even more drastic. Here are some of the penalties which brought about a bloody insurrection in 1733, costing the lives of many white planters, their wives and children. 'The lesser of runaway slaves shall be pinched three times with red-hot iron, and then hung. 'Each other runaway slave shall lose one leg, or if his owner pardon him he shall lose one ear and receive 150 stripes. 'A slave who runs away for eight days shall have 150 stripes; twelve weeks, shall lose one leg, and six months, shall forfeit his ears, unless the owner pardon him with the loss of one leg. 'A slave who lifts his hand to strike a white person or threaten him with a weapon shall be pinched and hung, should the white person demand it, if not, to lose his right hand. 'In the terrible insurrection one of the victims was a Judge Sockman, who was murdered and decapitated in the presence of his beautiful twelve year old daughter, and while a council was being held to determine what should be done with her the child, overwhelmed with grief, entreated them to take her life also, to which they gleefully acceded, laying her mangled body across that of her father.

When the insurrection was put down only after aid from the French in Martinique had been invoked. Three hundred slaves were surrounded and when they realized that escape was impossible they held a great feast of death. Tradition says that they plunged over a cliff, but the historian, Host, says that they shot one another and that when they were found at arm's Bay they were lying in a circle.

DOUGHERTY RETURNS FROM K. OF C. MEET

As State Deputy He Attended Supreme Council of Order-Convention Does Much Good.

William H. Dougherty, state deputy of the Knights of Columbus, returned to Janesville last evening from Davenport, Ia., where he attended the annual meeting of the supreme council.

In his opinion of the convention the most important matter decided upon was the action of the order to insure great comfort for American guardsmen on the American border. Just before adjournment on the last day of the convention Governor Hunt of Arizona sent a telegram expressing appreciation of this action. The message was warmly applauded. It commended the decision for the erection of recreation quarters for the soldiers.

Resolutions were adopted to continue the work of the religious prejudice commission and to remove the headquarters from Louisville to New Orleans and to make more united efforts in conducting the commission's campaign. The Rev. John Noll, publisher of 'The Sunday Visitor' discussing the religious prejudice issue, styled 'anti-Christian' rather than 'anti-Catholic' he suggested that a movement directed against both Catholics and Protestants and championed by the Socialists.

Albert Huebel and Peter V. Kuhn were in Davenport to attend some of the sessions. The entertainments planned by Davenport included banquets, steamboat rides on the Mississippi, an automobile tour of the cities and numerous other features.

Whitewater News

BLOOD POISON FATAL.
STARTED FROM SHOE PEG.

Whitewater, Wis., August 5.—Mrs. C. F. Weidman died early yesterday morning after an acute illness of but a few days. A week or so ago her foot was bruised by a peg in her shoe and blood poisoning developed. Deceased was formerly Mrs. Mary Graff and maintained a boarding house several years ago. The funeral will be from the First Evangelical church on Janesville street today.

President and Mrs. A. H. Yoder and family left yesterday on an auto trip to Normal, Ill., to be gone until Monday.

William Kury and niece, Miss Underwood, of Indianapolis, Indiana, returned home Friday after a week's visit at the home of Miss Mary Dyer. Prof. D. R. McGrew who has taught English at the Normal for the past four years has resigned and will teach the coming year at Evanston, Ill. Prof. and Mrs. McGrew and family drove overland to their new home on Thursday. They will be greatly missed by Whitewater people, especially when anything is attempted in the musical line.

The Fryer family are enjoying a family reunion the week end. John and sister Alma, came from Toledo, O., and John's wife and baby came from Mondovi, accompanied by Hon. Walter L. Houser, Mrs. Fryer's father. Mrs. U. J. Downey and little son have returned to their home in South Salem, N. D. after a three month's visit in this city.

The Misses Alice Brown, Martha Taylor, Rena Weld, Nellie Klawon, Linnah Koepke, Mrs. Alice Huebel, Mrs. Grace Scheller and Mrs. John Scholl are spending two weeks at the Young cottage at Lauderdale lake. Mrs. L. J. Amsum is visiting at the home of M. E. Rood. She is on her way home to Eau Claire from a visit to Chicago and Milwaukee.

Pure Drinking Water Important.
You should be extremely careful that the water you drink is pure. Typhoid germs are particularly likely to harbor in water that stands and to get into water which is in the sludge of some drain. Boiling will kill the germs and the peculiar flat taste which it has can be easily overcome by shaking it up thoroughly and injecting a dash of carbonated water.

MADE IN AMERICA

PRODUCTS INCREASE

American Manufacturers Was $24,000,000,000 in 1914.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, Aug. 5.—Value of manufactures in the United States was $24,246,323,000 in 1914, the census bureau reported today in announcing its preliminary statement of general results of the latest census of manufactures. In the five year period from 1909, the date of the previous census, manufactures increased $3,574,271,000 in value, or 17.2 per cent.

In the same period the 1914 census manufacturers have made rapid increases but no estimate of their value for this year has been made by the census bureau.

Increases were found in all items except proprietors' and firm members, which decreased 3.1 per cent. Salaries increased 37.2 per cent, capital 23.7, salaries composed 22 per cent, primary horsepower 30.7, wages 19 per cent, materials 18.3 per cent, value of products 17.3 per cent, value added by manufactures 15.8 per cent, wage earners 14.2 per cent, and number of establishments 2.7.

Capital invested was $22,790,880,000, a gain of $4,262,610,000 over 1909. Persons engaged number 8,265,428, of whom 7,026,327 were wage earners, 364,237 salaried employees, and 264,870 proprietors and firm members. Wage earners increased 421,291. There was paid for services, $5,367,243,000, an increase of $1,001,636,000, or 23.2 per cent.

Of that sum $4,079,332,000 was paid in wages, an increase of $652,294,000 over 1909, and $1,287,917,000 in salaries, an increase of $349,342,000.

Materials used were valued at $14,268,089,000, an increase of $2,222,000 in the five years, and the value added by manufactures was $9,878,234,000, an increase of $1,348,973,000.

SOX BREAK EVEN; HOLD FIRST PLACE

Senators Win Second White Rowland's Cop First as St. Louis Again Downs Red Sox.
The White Sox broke even in their double header with Washington yesterday but are still firmly established in the lead as a result of St. Louis winning its fourteenth straight game when Plank defeated the fast falling Red Sox, 6 to 2. Rowland's gathering won the first, 3 to 2, but dropped the second, 3 to 3.
Red Fisher was pitted against Walter Johnson and the two headed out pitched the famous Senator. Seven blows were gathered off the notorious Walter while the Reds were left down with one.
The Sox used six pitchers in the second game. Volongard started but after an inning gave way to Williams who was yanked in the fifth for Joe Bennett and runs had been drawn off him in five innings. Sena wobbled along for three innings but Russell was called to finish but despite his great work the Senators kept well in the lead to the finish.

EVERS REGRETS ROW WITH THIRD BASEMAN

Leader of Boston Team Apologizes for Altercation Yesterday With Smith—Issues Statement.
Captain John Evers of the Boston Braves last night issued a statement expressing his "sincere regret" over the incident of his altercation yesterday with Third Baseman Smith of the home club after which he very vividly expressed his disgust at the entire Boston team to the ears of everybody within a wide hearing radius, the outcome of which was being ordered from the field by Umpire Byron. Evers' statement is as follows:
"I am perfectly willing to admit I lost my head. It will be a day or two before I am able to get back into the game because of my back and neck, but I can promise that when I do return the Boston club shall have my best and most efficient services every moment I am on the field. There is no more than the club is entitled to."
"As for any feeling between Red and myself, let me say that we shook hands in the clubhouse this afternoon, of our own volition, and I am quite sure that from now on we will be the best of friends."

FOURTEENTH WIN FOR ST. LOUIS TEAM

Plank Trims Boston Easily Yesterday, Keeping Chicago White Sox In First Position.
One more victory, making fourteen in a row for the Browns. They crushed the Red Sox for the second time yesterday, 6 to 1, driving Ruth to the showers in five innings. The hero was Eddie Plank and he was never opened with singles. Several popped up, Sena hit to Lavan filled the sacks. Plank pitched without a hit, a slow roller to Barry, Pratt and Marsans scoring.

WESTERN LAWN TENNIS CHAMPIONSHIP BATTLE ON

Lake Forest, Ill., Aug. 5.—Western tennis sharks gathered here today to start play in the twenty-ninth annual championship tournament of the Western Lawn Tennis championship, which will be held on the courts of the Onwentsin club. Play will be continued to August 12.
There will be five events, the men's and women's singles and doubles, and the mixed center. In the men's singles, where westerners will attempt to regain the title taken by George M. Church, of Tenafly, N. J., who won last year's tournament, Church the final round. Miss C. B. Neely of Chicago, holders of the women's title, will meet the winner of the women's singles.
First, second and consolation prizes will be given in each event. The winners of the men's doubles will be eligible to compete against champions from other sections of the country in the preliminary national doubles, which will be held on the Onwentsin courts, August 15, 16 and 17. Winners in this latter event will play Messrs. William M. Johnston and Clarence J. Griffin, national doubles champions, for the title at the West Side Tennis club, New York, during the week ending August 28.
Only players affiliated with the United States National Lawn Tennis association and its subsidiaries, are eligible to enter the tournament.

MORRIS MILLER
It appears that Lee Fohl, Indians' manager, took a chance a while ago that he will always regret. He did what no other manager would ever dare do—broke up a winning combination. The Indians had won five games in a row and were leading the American league by four and a half games when Fohl shifted his line-up and put out a bunch of misbegotten bench and replacing him with Ray Chapman. Never will Fohl cease to regret it. Since that change the Indians have been bounding about on the rocks.
McCarthy, Brooklyn catcher, is right at the top of the National league in batting and is playing a wonderful game. Behind him goes to show the truth of the old adage that there's nothing like the old base hit as a tonic for a ball player. As a rule while he is hitting picks up his whole game. Improves his fielding in his best manner. McCarthy has been nabbing them on the sacks in a way that few would have thought was in him.
A fairly good batter on a tail-end team should hit better than the same batter on a pennant contender, point out good ball players. Pitchers ease up and lose their strength when pitching against the weak sisters. As a rule while playing the tail-enders the stronger team is so well along by the fifth inning that the pitcher can ease up and take a rest. And right then a fairly good batter can pick off a hit or two that ordinarily would not be his. As fair examples of this truth consider Larry Doyle, last season with the Giants. Larry Doyle never played on a pennant contender and yet consider the fat averages he has always been able to gather. Joe Jackson hit .370 with Cleveland and when he joined the White Sox, who were somewhat in the pennant fight, he closed the season with .308.
They claim the Covelleskie boys make up the greatest family in baseball. There are four of them all told. Two have already made their reps. Harry, a pitcher for the Detroit Tigers, and Stanley, a pitcher for the Cleveland Indians. Harry is the oldest and the biggest, being twenty-nine and six feet tall, also left-handed. Stanley is a right-handed pitcher, five feet five inches tall. Both are good pitchers and are up toward the top of the American league pitchers. There are other brothers who are sure they will amount to as much as their older brothers. Frank Covelleskie is a pitcher and outfielder and John is a third baseman.
Rube Marquard is said to have had more ups and downs than any pitcher that ever entered the game and right now they claim he's about due for another "up." Rube pitched brilliant again when he made his famous winning streak and then somehow he lost confidence and wasn't worth a cuss. McGraw believed that Rube would be good as ever if his confidence could be restored and he himself is pleased with his present employment with the Dodgers and declares that he's about to burst forth as brilliantly as he ever did.
Busb, McInnis, Schang and Strunk are all that is left with Connie Mack of the wonderful machine that he has built since he got to the Philadelphia Phillies. Busb has gone to the White Sox, Frank Baker to the Yankees and Jack Barry to the Red Sox, dispersing of the greatest infidels of all time. Some day Connie may develop another such gathering of talent, but it's hard to believe. He received a sum total of $120,000 for Lapp, Murphy, Barry, Baker, Shawkey, Egan, Pennock and Wyckoff. There is an idea that he may leave the old place before long, too.

FULTON FIELD DAY ATTRACTS HUNDREDS

Annual Community Picnic at Fulton Yesterday Is Decided Success.
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Edgerton, Aug. 5.—The second annual community rally and picnic given in the Fulton Field, yesterday was a success from every point of view. About three hundred were in attendance to participate in the athletics and to enjoy the day of sports. L. A. Markham, county Y. M. C. A. superintendent, was there to superintend the sports. The first attraction in the morning was a ball game between the single men and the married men. The game was very close throughout and resulted in a score of 6 to 7 in favor of the single men. The sensation of the game was the run of Rev. Schenckfeldt, at which time he hit the ball the entire length of the field and over the fence. Following is the line-up of the teams:
Married men—Schenckfeldt, c.; Jensen, p.; Sayre, 1b.; Lee, 2b.; Dory, 3b.; Pease, ss.; H. Pease, rf.; Fessenden, cf.; Wileman, lf.
Single men—Fessenden, c.; Thompson, p.; H. Pease, 1b.; Olson, 1b.; Hanson, cf.; Olson, p.; Sayre, lf.; Murray, cf.; Hartzel, ss.
Only seven innings were played in this game, the game being called for darkness after the picnic dinner other ball, volley ball, races and other games and sports were enjoyed.
The ball game between Milton and Fulton resulted in a score of 1 to 5 in favor of Milton.
Milton—Coon, lf.; Keller, c.; McCulloch, ss.; Carroll, p.; West, 1b.; Austin, 3b.; Hull, cf.; Austin, rf.; Gasper, 2b.; Fulton—Roscoe, 2b.; Schumacher, 3b.; O'Brien, 1b.; Williams, cf.; Peach, cf.; Jensen, lf.; Vickers, rf.; Evans, c.; Eldson, p.
Miss Katherine McManus of Janesville, won 50 fifty yard dash for girls, and Sayre won the 50 yard dash for boys.
The tug-of-war between a picked six of Edgerton and an equal number from Fulton resulted in a victory for the Fulton team. H. M. Raymond, a Fulton player, won the tug-of-war between a picked six of Edgerton and an equal number from Fulton. The tug-of-war was won by the Fulton team. D. C. Gile formed the Edgerton team, and J. Sayre, A. Wallin, H. Pease, W. Lee, W. Gardner and C. Fessenden composed the Fulton team. There was considerable enthusiasm on the part of the rooters for the rival teams and it was with great interest that the Fulton team won.
At the picnic held last year the Fulton team defeated the Edgerton players by a score of 10 to 1. The Edgerton team went to Fulton this year with determination to win this event. However, the Fulton team carried off the honors with a score of 25 to 21.
Among the prizes won by Janesville were: Mrs. Howard Lee, Miss Sarah Sutherland, Katherine McManus, L. A. Markham, Roy Wisner, John Whitton and Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Evans. There was a large delegation from Edgerton and Mr. and Mrs. W. Heddles and daughter, Miss Beulah, of Madison, were also present.

FAIRIES LOSE GAME TO FORT ATKINSON

Big Crowd Sees Beloit Team Defeated 10 to 1, at Community Picnic Event.
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Fort Atkinson, Aug. 5.—All records for attendance were broken yesterday at the annual community picnic given by the retail merchants association of this city in Jones park. Coffee, peanuts, refreshments of various kinds and a fine program of sports and games were carried out following which dancing was enjoyed on the greensward.
The feature of the day was the ball game between Fort Atkinson and the Fairbanks-Morse team of Beloit, the former winning the one-sided contest by a score of 10 to 1. The game would have resulted in a shut-out for the Beloit City visitors had it not been for an error on the part of Beloit's Brenegan. Score by innings:
Batteries: Fort Atkinson: Stack and Hamrick; Beloit: Tilly, Rose and Brenegan. Score by innings:
Fort Atkinson . . . 1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9
Beloit 0 0 0 0 0 0 1 0 1
Frank Moran plans to meet Carl Morris at Tulsa, Okla., on Labor day, and he seems to be starting his training for the Fort Atkinson team from New York that Frank is training on Broadway—something new and getting into wonderful condition by skipping about at late hours and having a lot of money in his pocket. He has a bit of money in the first game and he's getting so he likes to spend it. In truth it appears that prosperity does not go well with Frank and that he has some more to get to bed at reasonable hours. His condition for the Dillon bout was poor enough, and it isn't likely that the gay behavior will improve it.

St. Louis, Aug. 5.—President Ball of the St. Louis Americans, today offered a bonus of $5,000 to the team if it should go to first place in a day. He also offered a suit of clothes to every man on the team if they went into first division for three days.

BRITISH GAS ATTACKS HORRIBLE AS ENEMY'S

JOHN BULL RETALIATES WITH MOST HORRIBLE TYPE OF WARFARE EVER DEVISED BY HUMAN BEINGS.
English Censors Formally Tabooed Stories of This Kind of Fighting But Relax Seen Later.
[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
London, Aug. 5.—Before the "big squeeze" began discussion of British gas attacks was strictly prohibited. Now for taboo has been lifted and a British "gasman" has been allowed to write a graphic account of the work of his own special corps whose business it is, he says, to "do up" the Germans with their own medicine.
"Behind our lines," he writes, "the gas set in a blaze of glory. A glance over the parapet shows the green and scarlet of the popped No-Man's land already merging into the gray mists of twilight, but 150 yards away, like a brown earth shadow among the grays, hangs the rusty barbed wire of the enemy and just beyond a white, chalky upthrust marks his front line trench. The gas men start across the silent shadows at that white line and for a moment they think of the choky, gurgling cough of the men who die by gas. It is not pleasant to die by gas.
"Connect up." The order comes down the line from one bay of the trench to another, and the gasmen immediately get busy. The front rows of newly piled sandbags, which each freestep is apparently solidly built are pulled out and disclose a cavity in which show, black and ominous, the cowed heads of a row of iron cylinders. They are sunk in the trench, bagged up to protect them from possible crack or puncture by flying fragment or ricocheting bullet. Each cylinder weighs about 130 pounds and contains sufficient compressed gas, if it can be used, without waste, to put an entire company out of action.
"On top of the cylinders lies a tangle of flexible connecting pipes, three or four way joints, spigots, and screw-jets, and the gasmen start work. The cylinders are all connected up in series, and nothing remains but to throw the jets over the top of the parapet and open the valves in order to release the deadly fumes.
"Need Strong Breeze.
"But something is required to carry the gas over to the German lines—a favoring breeze and never did sailor scan the sky more intent than the gasmen watch their little, inconspicuous wind gauges, fixed to the edge of a trench. They must have a wind of a certain direction, and they prefer it of a certain strength. On this occasion, the direction is satisfactory enough, but the breeze shows signs of weakness, and occasionally falls to a mere, almost imperceptible zephyr.
"When not watching the wind, the gasmen are watching their pipes. It is a tedious feeling and testing every inch of tube and joint; for none know better than they the danger of leakage and of the escape of gas into their own trenches. Persistently an officer passed down the line, casting rapid though keen glances as he goes at each set of cylinders and their connecting pipes. And in every bay he pauses and whispers two words to the corporal in charge: "Eleven o'clock." But the wind, without which the gas will not reach the enemy's trench and do its deadly work among its occupants, begins to peter out.
"At ten-fifty the gasmen don their special respirators, which in the dim light, give the wearers a strange, almost inhuman appearance. Masked and goggled, with weird, trunk-like pieces of apparatus hanging from the mouthpiece to the box at their waist, they look like some of the unearthly beings who people the books of Mr. H. G. Wells.
"But no breath disturbs the still air. The feeble breeze has died completely. Hurriedly the order runs down the line: "Cancel, and stand by." Behind their masks the gasmen groan discontentedly. But suddenly—"Crack!" a rat-tat-tat-tat! The orders to the infantry have been countermanded, and the quiet of the night is roughly shattered by a long, long of viciously cracking rifles and Lewis guns to which the Germans reply.
"Fearful Apparatus.
"The gasmen move about uneasily. It is not for themselves they fear, but for their pipes and cylinder heads flying bare and exposed to the hail of flying fragments. Well they know the danger of bursts and of trenches filled with gas and wind to move it. But they cannot budge without orders, and so they detail one of their number in each bay to watch the cylinders while the rest gather behind the traverse, as being a slightly safer spot.
"When day breaks a fair wind is blowing straight towards the German trenches. But of course it is now broad daylight and the gas will be visible as soon as it leaves the pipes. The gasmen know what to expect. They know that as soon as the greenish-gray clouds appear outside their parapet there will be running messengers and hurried telephoning in the German lines. They know that within a few minutes the word will have reached the German big guns at the back, and that every piece capable of flattening out a parapet and burying them, mangled and broken, among their own cylinders will be concentrated upon the front line trench in which they stand.

Morbid Work Starts.
"Time! Over the top the jet-pipes are flung, and then, simultaneously, along almost two miles of trench there arises a sibilant hiss, as of some monstrous and venomous snake suddenly aroused from slumber. Now the gasmen are working frantically with wheel and spanner and key, and to hiss increases in shrillness and volume. Outside the parapet, the green poison fog is already spreading like a foul blanket over No Man's land. Carried ceaselessly forward its outer edge is rapidly approaching the German trenches, into which it will presently sink, spreading agony and death among those who cannot escape.
"No rifle or machine gun fire has been opened this time, and from either line scarcely a sound is heard except the deadly hiss of the escaping fumes. The minutes pass in tense, ominous quiet. Nature herself seems to pause aghast to watch this latest devilry practiced by her children upon one another.
Germans Get Range.
"Behind their masks the gasmen begin to breathe more freely, and then suddenly, on the left, "Crash! And "Crash! again, and yet again. This time on the right, somewhere close at hand. The men crouch lower under their cylinders: the explosions follow one another almost too rapidly to count, and in any case their minds are no longer fitted to count—only the valves must be turned, and the sudden spur of vapor which marks a gas leak must be checked by the application of a handful of mud, while the gas itself immediately freezes into an iron-hard and impenetrable mass.

"In one of the bays the parapet, suddenly and falls forward, burying the men and their cylinders. Automatically the men scramble out unhurt, but the pipe is broken, and the gas is filling the trench with spatter and mud the thing is stopped, new connections are rigged up, and the death vapor again directed outside what is left of the trench. In one of the men has had the mouthpiece of his respirator broken, and already he is coughing and choking hoarsely, and goes behind the traverse to suck an ammonia ampule and die slowly.
End of the Battle.
"Closing-up time! Rapidly the valves are shut down, the jet pipes withdrawn and plugged and stacked away. Reversely the men work at bagging up their cylinders again, and perturbably a sergeant stalks down the ruined and battered trench, shepherding his flock toward their dugout. He is an old-timer—a transfer from the infantry—and he scarcely quivers as a shell bursts behind a traverse he has just left. Quietly he directs two of the men to carry an unconscious case to the nearest point of the communication trench where stretcher-bearers may be found.
"In the dug-out, with the shells still pounding overhead, the section's roll is called. Most of the men answer to their names. Some are answered for comrades as wounded and for others no one answers at all.

PENNSY WILL SHINE IN 1916 FOOTBALL

Bob Fowell, Their Coach, Confident Squad Will More Than Hold Their Own in Fall Charts.
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Philadelphia, August 5.—When Bob Fowell assembled the University of Pennsylvania football squad on Franklin field early next month for the first "work-out" there is one thing he will impress upon every man—no drudgery.
Bob dropped down to Philadelphia recently to look over the greensward where this fall he expects to bring to the oft-defeated Red and Blue team to sweeping victory and possibly a place once more in the "big league" with Princeton, Harvard and Yale.
"My plans are complete," he said, "and the training system I will use will be precisely the same as the one I put into operation at Lafayette and Washington and Jefferson. No moonlight scrimmages. More teams are killed by overtraining than defeats. Fowell announced that Captain Neil Matthews will return to Philadelphia about September 1 to assist in preparations to send the team to Langhorne, Pa., where the preliminary training camp will be established. The eleven will probably leave September 11.
Only four players have been lost to Penn. by graduation—Captain Ned Harris, Ed Russell, Jean Rockefeller and Mike Dorizas.

Violins and Other Troubles.
 "What do you suppose violins were invented for?" I'd like to catch the sink that did it."
 "I guess they were made to be practiced on," James, Jr., remarked, rather indignantly, "or else to be squeaked on."

"If it wasn't for violins we could go on playing it all day, couldn't we?" Winsor said, with a hopeless air.
 "How long have you got to practice today?"
 "I haven't made up my mind yet," said James, Jr., "but I don't think I'll practice more than a half hour from Thursday yet, and fifteen minutes on Friday."

"What did you ever start taking lessons for?" Winsor demanded, indignantly. "You might as well take lessons. Believe me, I never did take lessons. My ma wanted me to practice on the piano, but I wouldn't. It's just like being in jail. I wouldn't practice on a violin for a million dollars."

"Taint my fault," James wailed. "You don't need to think I'm taking lessons 'cause I like to. I wish this violin was busted."
 At that moment there came a voice from the kitchen. "James, dear, isn't it about time you began practicing?"
 "You've got a lot to do this morning, you know," James grumbled. "Yes, he knew. 'Aw, ma,' he grumbled, 'can't I wait till this afternoon? I'll do it then.'"

"I guess you better do some of it this morning," his mother said, and there was a hint of finality in her tone. "You have to take your lesson at three, you know."
 So James took his violin from its place in the music room and made ready to start his work. For a moment or two Winsor sat down and gazed at the captive sympathetically. But when James began to tune up the instrument he beat a retreat with his fingers in his ears. Some things he could stand, but the squeaky notes which were extricated from his cousin's musical instrument were not in that number.

James practiced. After a time the sweat began rolling down his face, and his arms ached. The clock ticked about once every ten minutes and after the first ten minutes it stopped entirely. James went into the other room and found that the other clock had stopped also, or at least it registered the same time. Then his ear detected a faint ticking. The clock was going. Could it be true that he had only been in the torture chamber for twenty minutes?
 Winsor sought the river, where he had every reason to expect he would find Charlie. Floorman, and sure enough, there was Charlie, with a fish pole.

"Hi, Charlie," he greeted, "what're you doing?"
 "Fishing," said Charlie. "There ain't a fish in the whole river. Where's Jim?"
 "He's got to practice," Winsor sniffed. "And it'll take him all morning."
 "Gosh but I wouldn't play that ole violin if I had to," Charlie muttered.

"He never has no fun. I'd burn it up."
 "Well, what'll we do?" Winsor wanted to know. "It's too hot to stay here an' do nothing."
 "Let's talk down an' see what's the thing's doing," Say, he went on as the two slowly walked up the bank, "when you go home, Winsor?"
 "Dunno," was the reply. "I've been here most a week now, and I can't stay but two. I suppose I gotta go next Friday or Saturday. Gee, I hate to. I lived here. At home we ain't got nothing but a creek to swim or fish in, an' you gotta whole big river."

When they reached the collection of stores which composed the commercial section of the village, and were known by the general name of "Town," a surprise awaited them. On the side of Reggie's store, which was the favorite bill board of the place, were pasted glaring announcements.

HYENA BILL'S WILD WEST GRAND CIRQUE ON AUG. 8.

"What're they read on. The bills told of how great things was going to be at the show, how many Indians there were and how many cowboys. It told of western scenes that would be re-enacted, and below all were the words: 'Admission twenty-five cents. Performance in evening only.'"
 "Gee, twenty-five cents," Charlie murmured. "Aint got that?"
 "I aint either," said Winsor, "but I guess I can get it if I write home. Maybe we can do sumthin' for the show and get in free."

That morning the show furnished the topic for most of the conversation, and the more they talked about it the grander it seemed. Winsor returned home about eleven o'clock, to find that his mother had been to the show. "James had rebelled at having to practice more than an hour. His mother had tried all sorts of persuasion and with no success. James had taken his music and dump it on the floor, and the penalty had been a short stay upstairs, where he could have time to think and repent."

As things stood at present, James could not play any more the whole day, and an hour had been added to his practicing time for punishment. Winsor's disgust was manifest. To think that for the whole day he could not play with James at all. It had been bad enough before, but now—! The boy blamed the whole thing upon the violin.

"The ding thing!" he muttered. "I don't see why on earth the things were ever made. All they do is squeak and make trouble."
 But James was a prisoner. All the morning, after the punishment, he had practiced. After dinner he practiced, and at night was his usual lesson. Altogether it was a most dreary day. Winsor wandered about listlessly. His Aunt Mary told him it was too hot to go in swimming, because he would surely get cramps and die. Winsor reflected that the water was always either too hot or too cold to swim in. What was the right temperature, he wondered.

When James came back from his practice he had the worst hard luck story of the day to tell.
 "Gee, Winsor," he wailed, "that ole fat teacher of mine is goin' to have a recital. She's goin' to have a regular concert in the op'ry house, an' she says I've gotta give a piece, an' she gave me the music, and I've gotta practice extra on that every day, an' play it at the ding ole recital."
 Winsor was sympathetic. "I tol' you you hadn't oughta take those ole lessons," he said. "Now you can't play at all. What night is the thing goin' to be on?"

"It's goin' to be next week, on August fourth," James told him.
 "Wow!" Winsor exclaimed. "On August fourth! Gee, Jim, that's the night of the Wild West Show!"
 "For days the boys thought and thought. But they could decide on nothing which would allow James to escape the recital and let him be present at the Wild West Show. Of course he could be sick, but that would keep him at home. There seemed no way. Every day James practiced his piece, but he did it in the morning, and without much protest, so no further trouble was evinced."

At length came August fourth. The Wild West Show came in, and gave a grand afternoon parade. James and Winsor followed the line of march from the tents back to the tent where everything was wonderful. It absolutely could not be missed.
 After the parade, James had a half hour of practicing to do, his last before the recital.
 "Break the ole violin," advised Winsor, with sudden inspiration.
 "I darsent," said James, sorrowfully. "I darsent, Jim. Go home an' practice. I'm goin' to stay down here at the show."

So James went home and Winsor remained. In a short time he discovered that there was something very interesting about the show grounds. He thought himself of a five cent piece which was reposing in his pocket. He started for the store. Once arrived, it took nearly half an hour for him to decide what to buy. He asked the price of every kind of candy in the case, how many one could get for a nickel, and often requested that the clerk would weigh up a nickel's worth to see how much there would be.

While thus occupied, the door opened, and who should enter but his Aunt Mary. Winsor was all attention at once. He noticed that she was carrying James' violin case, and he at once supposed the James had broken the string, or perhaps more, and that his mother was taking it down to get it fixed.
 Aunt Mary laid the violin case down and proceeded to make some purchases. She did not catch sight of Winsor. Then, when she had finished her shopping, the astonished Winsor saw her walking out the door, leaving the violin where she had first placed it. He could hardly believe his eyes. Here was a golden opportunity. He caught his candy quickly and, picking up the violin case, walked out of the store. No one noticed the act particularly, and if they did see him, they supposed that he had brought it in with him.

Winsor sped up alleys and side streets all the way home, and once there, he showed the treasure to James in high glee. "See," he cried, "she's brought it out tonight, and if you don't have it tonight you won't have to go to the recital." They hid the violin in the barn.

When Aunt Mary came home she wore a decidedly troubled air. The first thing she did was to look the whole house over for the violin. It was nowhere to be seen. She had taken the violin to the music shop to be fixed, for somehow two strings had been broken. Past experience with violin strings had taught her that it was better to have someone who knew how to put the strings on. Somewhere she had left it. But it could not be found.

At six o'clock the music shop closed. A six thirty Winsor very cleverly found the violin case and hid it on top of the piano. The explanation was known now, but the strings on. Some reason gone off and forgotten it. "What can you do, James," she queried, "you've got to go to the show." "Dunno," replied James cheerfully. "I spects I'll have to go to the Wild West Show." There was a dawn of a great suspicion in his mother's voice. "Wild West Show!" I guess not. You can get some strings!

Past experience with violin strings had taught her that it was better to have someone who knew how to put the strings on. Somewhere she had left it. But it could not be found.

At six o'clock the music shop closed. A six thirty Winsor very cleverly found the violin case and hid it on top of the piano. The explanation was known now, but the strings on. Some reason gone off and forgotten it. "What can you do, James," she queried, "you've got to go to the show." "Dunno," replied James cheerfully. "I spects I'll have to go to the Wild West Show." There was a dawn of a great suspicion in his mother's voice. "Wild West Show!" I guess not. You can get some strings!

play at all. What night is the thing goin' to be on?"
 "It's goin' to be next week, on August fourth," James told him.
 "Wow!" Winsor exclaimed. "On August fourth! Gee, Jim, that's the night of the Wild West Show!"
 "For days the boys thought and thought. But they could decide on nothing which would allow James to escape the recital and let him be present at the Wild West Show. Of course he could be sick, but that would keep him at home. There seemed no way. Every day James practiced his piece, but he did it in the morning, and without much protest, so no further trouble was evinced."

At length came August fourth. The Wild West Show came in, and gave a grand afternoon parade. James and Winsor followed the line of march from the tents back to the tent where everything was wonderful. It absolutely could not be missed.
 After the parade, James had a half hour of practicing to do, his last before the recital.
 "Break the ole violin," advised Winsor, with sudden inspiration.
 "I darsent," said James, sorrowfully. "I darsent, Jim. Go home an' practice. I'm goin' to stay down here at the show."

So James went home and Winsor remained. In a short time he discovered that there was something very interesting about the show grounds. He thought himself of a five cent piece which was reposing in his pocket. He started for the store. Once arrived, it took nearly half an hour for him to decide what to buy. He asked the price of every kind of candy in the case, how many one could get for a nickel, and often requested that the clerk would weigh up a nickel's worth to see how much there would be.

While thus occupied, the door opened, and who should enter but his Aunt Mary. Winsor was all attention at once. He noticed that she was carrying James' violin case, and he at once supposed the James had broken the string, or perhaps more, and that his mother was taking it down to get it fixed.
 Aunt Mary laid the violin case down and proceeded to make some purchases. She did not catch sight of Winsor. Then, when she had finished her shopping, the astonished Winsor saw her walking out the door, leaving the violin where she had first placed it. He could hardly believe his eyes. Here was a golden opportunity. He caught his candy quickly and, picking up the violin case, walked out of the store. No one noticed the act particularly, and if they did see him, they supposed that he had brought it in with him.

Winsor sped up alleys and side streets all the way home, and once there, he showed the treasure to James in high glee. "See," he cried, "she's brought it out tonight, and if you don't have it tonight you won't have to go to the recital." They hid the violin in the barn.

When Aunt Mary came home she wore a decidedly troubled air. The first thing she did was to look the whole house over for the violin. It was nowhere to be seen. She had taken the violin to the music shop to be fixed, for somehow two strings had been broken. Past experience with violin strings had taught her that it was better to have someone who knew how to put the strings on. Somewhere she had left it. But it could not be found.

Orfordville News

Orfordville, Aug. 4.—Several members of the Luther Valley band from the village, were to New York to attend the picnic in Sullivan's grove where the band was engaged to play, on Friday.
 On Tuesday a young son of Ole Ryding, who resides in the town of Plymouth, south of Hanover, was very seriously hurt in a runaway accident. It appears that as the boy was driving the team, one of the lines became caught under the tongue of the horse, and the youth, thinking to liberate it, walked out on the tongue, where he lost his balance, falling under the horses. He became entangled in the harness, and the team becoming frightened, ran, dragging the boy across fields and through wire fences until, when rescued, he was more dead than alive. Doctors were called from Beloit and Orfordville, who discovered that one arm was terribly crushed, and that his body was a mass of cuts and bruises. On Friday morning he was removed to the hospital, where he is now lying, and the attending physician holds out hope for his recovery.

Several from the village attended the social at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Rinehimer in the town of Plymouth on Thursday night and report a most excellent time.
 On Friday afternoon Miss Jessie Kelley entertained "For the Babies" at the home of her mother, Mrs. John Kelley. The invited guests consisted of a company of young girls, several of whom are now married, who a few years ago were chums in the village and whose social functions were frequent. Those from out of town were: Mrs. Basie Eminger-Christopher of Albany; Mrs. Blanche Gray-Wiggins and Mrs. Mayme Kelly-Nelson of Janesville; and Mrs. Verna Mowle-Milford of Lima. The company consisted of fourteen grown-ups and eight babies. A picnic dinner was served at noon. In the afternoon much time was spent in photographing the babies, much to the amusement and delight of their older friends. The occasion was intended to remind the guests of the fact that though a few years had been added to each of their lives, yet the spirit of youth was still among them as manifest as in the days of a few years ago.

Willowdale, Aug. 4.—Mr. and Mrs. P. S. Wold and little daughter Marian miraculously escaped death Wednesday evening, when the auto truck in which they were riding tipped over a bridge into the water. Mr. Wold, with his wife and daughter, were returning home with a load of cream when the accident occurred. The powerful lights from a car coming from the opposite direction blinded Mr. Wold so he failed to see the narrow bridge they were approaching. This bridge had no railing, and so without warning the truck fell over into the water. The occupants were unhurt, aside from the nervous shock and numerous scratches and bruises. Aside from the loss of the cream, the truck was damaged to some extent.

Miss Grace Mooney of Edgerton spent the week end at her home here. Mrs. P. L. Terwilliger and daughter Mary have returned from Dixon, Ill., where they were called by the death of a relative, Miss Harriet Terwilliger will stay there for some time.

Miss Mae Mooney has returned from a visit at the home of her uncle, Mr. James Conway of Leyden. Her cousin, Miss Madona Conway, accompanied her home.
 A very light rain fell here yesterday, hardly settling the dust.
 The farmers are busy entertaining the threshers this week.

West Center, Aug. 4.—Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Drafiail and Mr. and Mrs. August Sornow and Johnnie Miller motored to Brodhead Sunday. The latter remained for a week's stay at the home of his parents.
 There will be services at the Evangelical church next Sunday at 10:30 a. m. Sunday school at 9:45. Rev. Johnson of Evansville will occupy the pulpit, Rev. Zellmer being away.
 Mr. and Mrs. Frank Geise left Thursday afternoon for their home in Janesville, after spending some time at the home of their daughter, Mrs. William Harnack.
 Mr. and Mrs. Hinkelman called on Mrs. Hannah Rowland Monday afternoon.
 Some of the farmers are barely through cutting grain when others are threshing.

FINE ROADS EVERYWHERE

Automobile is True Discoverer of America and its Charms.

When you hear a man say that he is sorry he ever bought his car, it is not necessarily an indication that he paid more for it than it was worth or that operation of it is costing him more than he can afford. The probabilities are that he is one of the people who never have indulged in the pleasures of touring.

There are many men who still have the old-fashioned notion that automobiles are to be used only on city boulevards. They ride from their homes to their offices and from their offices to their homes, with an occasional trip through the parks and over the routes where the crowds are to be found on Sundays.

Consequently, they soon grow weary of what they call "the same old thing." They have yet to learn that touring in an automobile is not surpassed by any other kind of outdoor fun. They have failed to put their cars to one of the best of their many splendid uses.

In these days of road-improvement, and since automobiles in general have been developed to a point at which the trouble that used to be common have practically been eliminated, it is possible for the tourist to start for almost any point with a reasonable certainty of getting there and back.

The improvement of roads in almost all parts of the country has been accompanied by the establishment of many conveniences which add to the pleasures of touring. One never gets far from a place at which gasoline is supplied, and can be found at nearly any country store, and a shop at which emergency repairs can be made is usually close at hand if things happen to go wrong.

Furthermore, there has, owing to the popularity of touring, been an appreciable improvement in the accommodations offered by hotels in the small towns and villages. Good meals and comfortable beds at reasonable prices are the rule, rather than the exception, almost wherever the tourist finds it necessary to put up for the night. The country tavern has been rehabilitated. The old staid coaching days have in many instances been added modern conveniences and up-to-date service which contributes much to the enjoyment of the touring party.

Attractions Everywhere
Within easy reach of almost every part of America there is some place that will afford a visit from the tourist. In most cases there are many such places.

The car owner who complains that "there's no place worth seeing" within a day's ride of the town or city in which he lives is to be pitied, because the trouble undoubtedly is his own inability to appreciate what is sublime, or beautiful or interesting.

Next to every state has a Grand Canyon, a Yosemite, a Yellowstone Park, a Niagara Falls or a Mt. Vernon, but there isn't a single state of the Union that is wholly devoid of natural wonders. It possesses no other spots that should be interesting for one reason or another. It is hardly too much to say, indeed, that there isn't a single section of any state that is altogether lacking in interest of scenic beauty, or of historical or romantic associations.

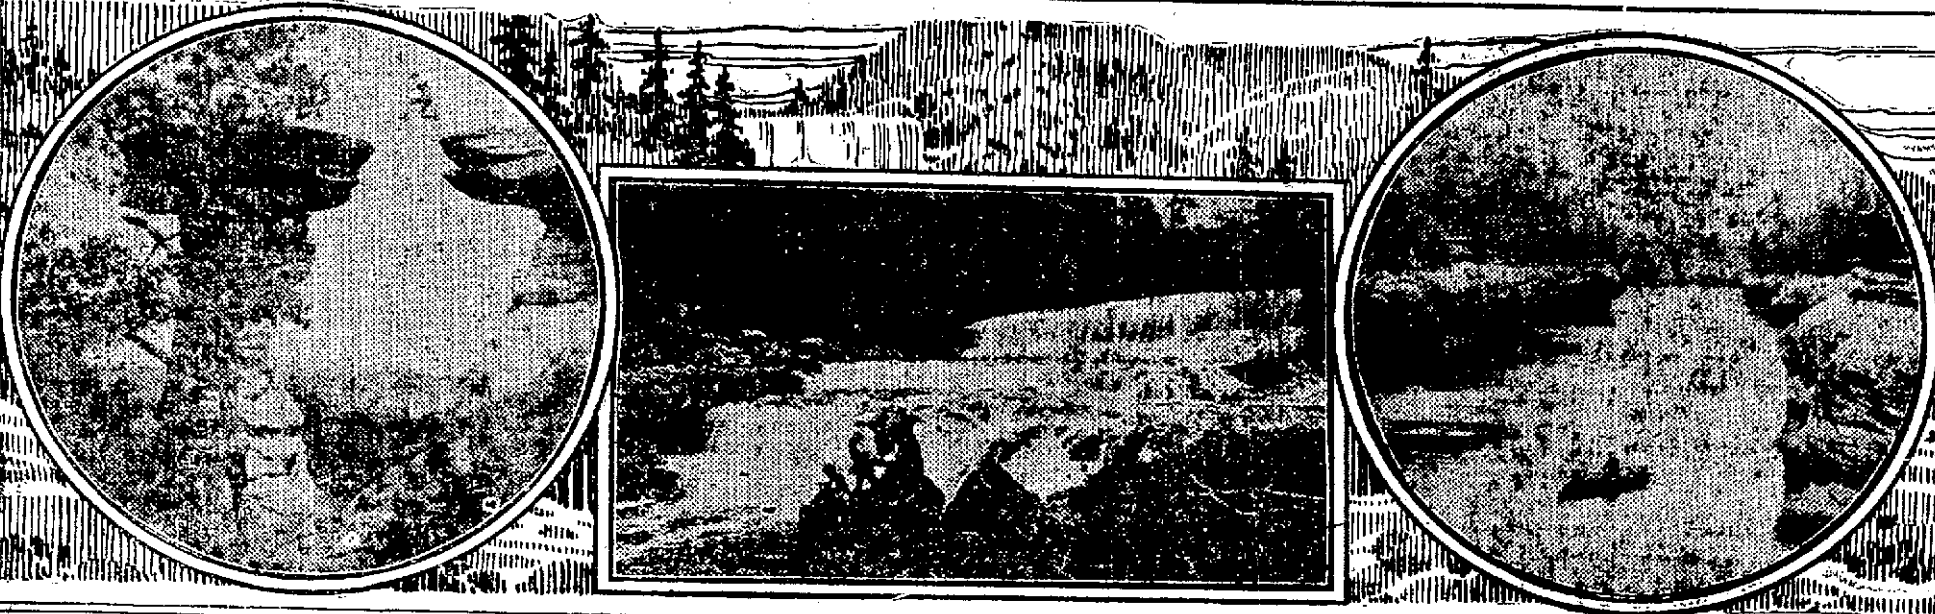

The coming of the automobile tourist has brought about the "discovery" of hundreds of interesting places that were otherwise have remained forever unknown and unused. The hilly prairie and the prairie country, the lakes, the rivers and the valleys, all their regular charms, so that the tourist is readily accessible within a few hours' ride of every important center of population some place that is worth seeing and worth knowing.

Attention to the attractions that can be found on short local tours is always the long trip to make the appeal to the automobile owner who desires to see the beauties of his country. The man who crosses the country in an automobile gets a real conception of the vastness of the United States. He has an adequate understanding of the country's agricultural wealth, and he obtains the opportunity to get a whole new view of the splendid among its multi-colored charms.

Some Favored Sections
There is the Berkshire Hills country, Massachusetts, the White Mountains, Region in New Hampshire, the Adirondack district around Lake Champlain, and Lake George in New York. Mention the Mohawk Valley, the Adirondacks or the Adirondacks. The Grand Canyon of Kentucky; the Tennessee and West Virginia; the Lake regions of Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota; the California Coast; Colorado and Arizona. To attempt to name all of the wonderful places that are accessible to the automobile tourist would be to follow the example of the proverbial man who says "I can't go on, and go on."

Obtaining any route information that may be wanted, no matter what section of the country the tourist wishes to visit. Route cards and maps are free for the asking and they indicate the directions that the motorist requires.

"Blame It on the Tire"

He didn't pump it full enough,
though all the air is free;
He left it soft and spongy like, and
scouted on with glee;
He skidded and he gridded and whooped through dust and mire.

And when it burst
He cursed and cursed,
And blamed it on the tire.

He drove it on the street car tracks
with confidence superb;
He scraped it on the lamp posts and he scraped it on the curb;
He slammed it and he jammed it any way he might desire.

And when it popped,
Right out he leaped,
And blamed it on the tire.

He cut it on some broken glass, but said that didn't hurt;
He kept right on through sand and mud and filled the cut with dirt.

It spotted there and roiled there and soon he howled in ire,
When up it blew
He blew up, too,
And blamed it on the tire.

He put on chains that ground and chewed and gouged into the tread;
He knew his wheels were out of line. "But what of that?" he said.

He whizzed along and axled along,
he picked up nails and wire,
And when it banged
His face he whanged,
And blamed it on the tire.

Who is this man? Go ask the boys who meet him every day,
Go ask the boys who have to hear him curse and swear.
He bores in and he roars in with words of angry fire.
Though he's to blame,
It's all the same—
He blames it on the tire.

—Wilbur D. Nesbit.

What You Should Take With You on That Tour

Before starting out on an extended trip be sure to go over your car thoroughly. Tighten every bolt and nut, put fresh oil in the oil cups and turn them up. A tightened nut says an exchange may save hours of trouble and worry on the road. But your preparation is not completed after the mechanical adjustment has been attended to. Tools and supplies should be taken to provide against emergencies. Include in the trunk the following:

One extra casing (deep covered), inner tubes for all casings, two extra tubes properly wrapped or bagged to protect from oil and prevent chafing, one box self-vulcanizing patches and one box permanent puncture plugs (for small punctures), one tire sleeve, one set of tire applying levers, one box powdered soapstone or mica to be used between casing and tube to prevent sticking, one can plastic to repair cuts in casing, six valves inside, six valve caps, three dust caps, air pump, collapsible water bucket, jack, complete tool kit, raincoat, one set of chains, two extra spark plugs, Machinist rope or wire (forty feet), one extra water tank for drinking purposes and radiator (five gallons), one small medical kit, face cream for sunburn and stinked goggles (yellow or orange).

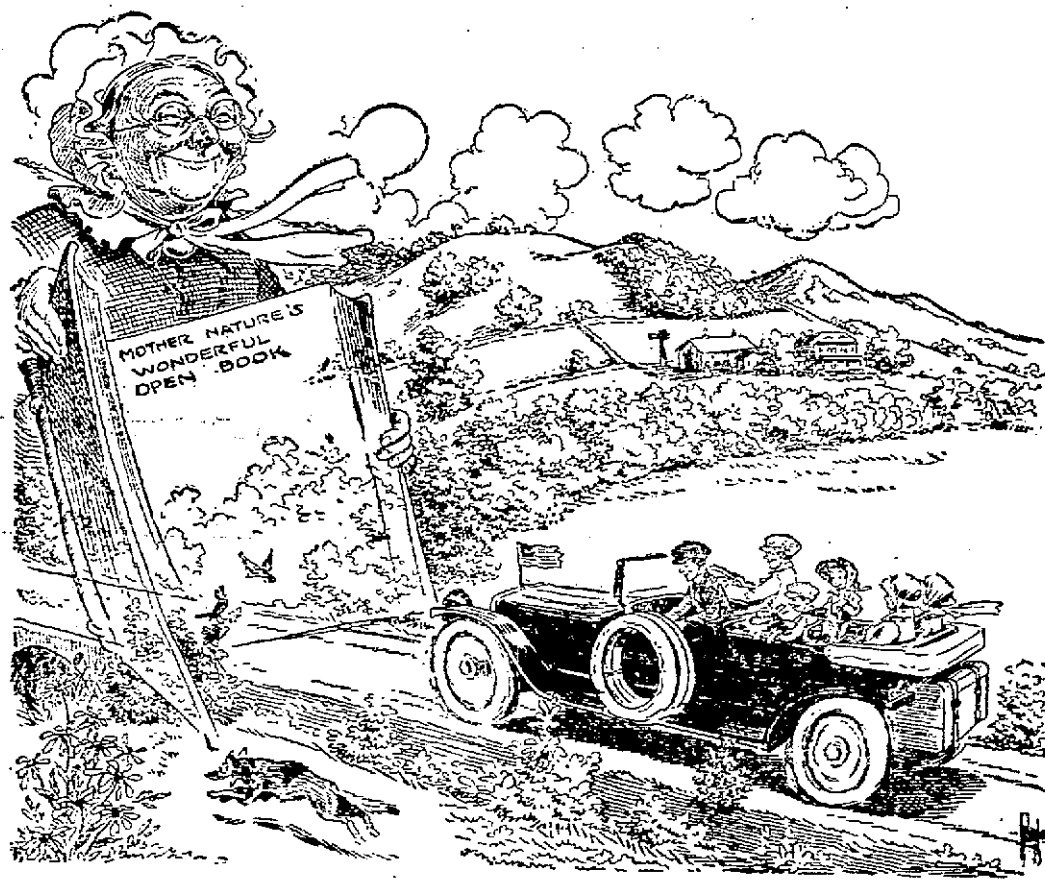

NEGLECTED OPPORTUNITIES

The car owner who never takes his family or a party of congenial friends on a week-end tour is a good deal like the man who has a million dollars hidden in his back yard and thinks wealth is merely a responsibility.

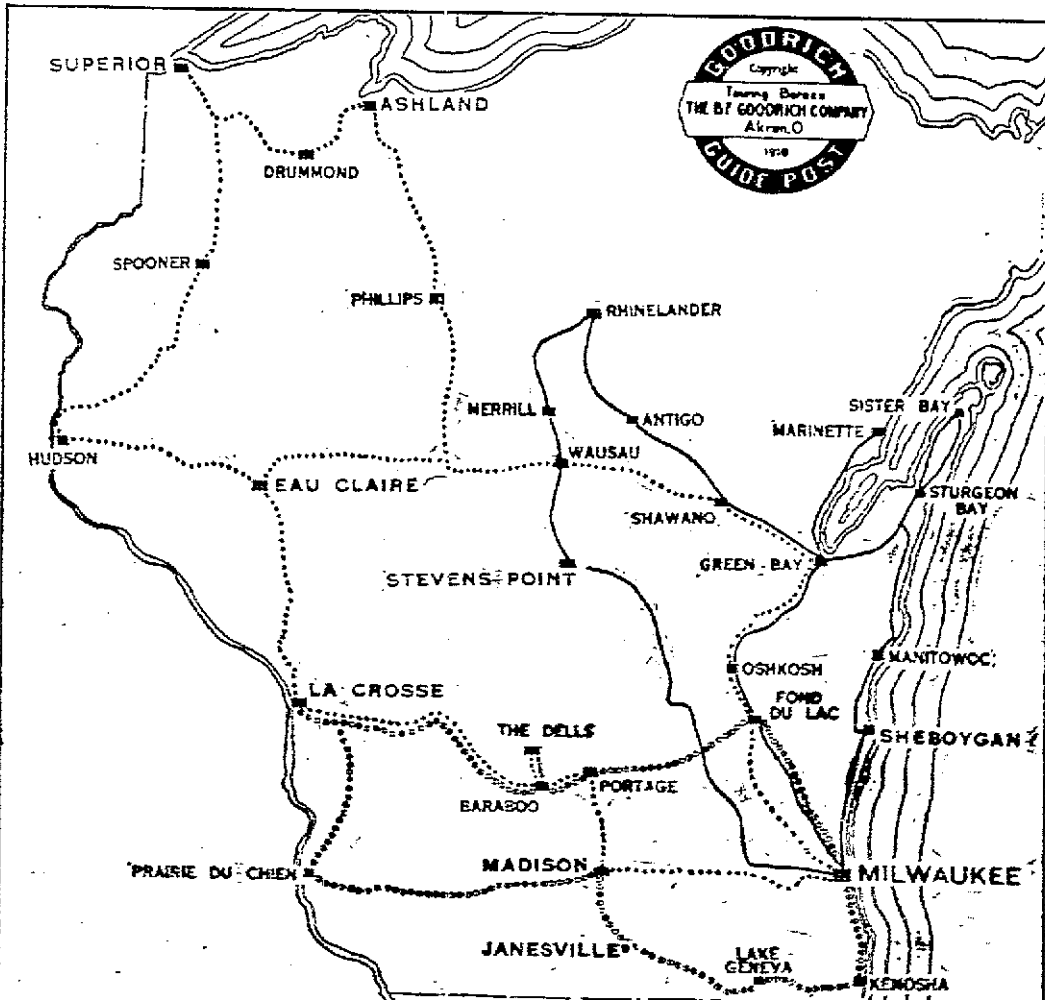

Don'ts For Motorists

Don't overcrowd your car.
Don't load up with supplies you will not need.
Don't start with a car that is not in first-class running condition.
Don't try to do the impossible.
Don't race with locomotives.
Don't fail to take an extra tire or two along.
Don't disregard local regulations, even if they seem unreasonable.
Don't neglect to prepare for rain and cold.
Don't forget safety first, last and always.

GUIDE POST IS GOOD SAMARITAN TO AUTOMOBILISTS

Private Enterprise Marking
Roads Enlisted by War Department.

The more civilized man becomes the more easily he gets lost. In the semi-barbaric days he trod untracked wilds and pathless seas, but always somehow he "got there."

In later times, having seemingly lost his sense of direction, he began to mark his trail so that he could find his way back. The gashed bark of a tree trunk has guided countless men and women to their destinations; but when civilization, and as the speed of the traveler increased, better road markers became essential.

So there appeared various crude boards nailed on poles and set up at cross-roads, stones covered with numbers indicating distances, and similar landmarks such as may still be found in many country districts.

But until a short time ago there was no attempt to establish systematic marking of American roads. Every locality had its own style and in many instances the guide boards were so weather-beaten and defective as to be valueless.

The automobile tourist who went beyond the boundary of his county found it necessary to stop at every cross-roads and ask the farmer for his way. Usually the information he got was of little use, because any distance exceeding ten or fifteen miles was out of the farmer's reckoning.

Four years ago the B. F. Goodrich Company, realizing the necessity of an adequate system of road markers, stepped in where governing bodies had failed, and has since made safe for travel over 100,000 miles of roads in all parts of the United States.

Great Touring Stimulus
This work has been carried out systematically under the supervision of experts and in a style which has won the approval and co-operation of local automobile clubs and even state legislatures.

While only one road marking crew operated during the first year, its work met with such thorough approval that larger plans were made for the second year's work, three crews being sent out—one working through the Middle West, another through the Pacific Coast States, and the third in the East.

The sign now being used is made of galvanized iron with aluminum letters sunk into the surface. It will not rust or deteriorate and is in all respects the most serviceable road marker that has ever been devised.

More than 100,000 of these signs mark the roads in twenty-five states and cover three main trans-continental routes. They have been erected at a cost of over $5 each and have unquestionably done much to stimulate the good roads movement, develop American touring and add to the rapidly growing desire among motorists to "see America First."

Never wash your car with hot water. Tepid water is best for this purpose. Hot water spoils the varnish and destroys luster.

In passing other vehicles going in the direction which you are traveling keep to the left, except in the case of trolley cars.

WISCONSIN'S LAKE REGION RICH IN MOTORING TOURS

Alluring Automobile Cir-

Fine Outing Trips.

BEAUTY IS BROADCAST.

Motorist Has But to Sally Forth on Voyage of Discovery.

"Lake Land" might very well be another name for Wisconsin, but to this should be added "Vacation Land," for no other state has such a variety of lake scenery, or such wonderful possibilities for vacations and vacation automobile tours.

Nevertheless, though Wisconsin may boast of a population of motorists well up in the rank of states, and though its "Vacation Land" with its many scenic journeys beckons to them, there is no general realization amongst our automobilists of the wonders and pleasures to be found within a few days' travel of their garage, none of them outside the boundaries of the state.

A dozen, yes, twenty, splendid trips of from three and four days' to two weeks' duration may be planned in loops to cover practically every section of the state. In no case would the motorist find any stretch of landscape wanting in scenic beauty, or those features that go to make up the modern "show spot."

Grand Tour of State

A grand tour which might daunt the average motorist, but which is nevertheless practical, may be started with Duluth and Milwaukee as the basic points. Upon this grand tour one may link practically every important city of the state. He may cut it short at any point, or extend it as suits the time of his vacation. The red letter points which would mark this state encircling trip, are Milwaukee, Fond du Lac, Oshkosh, Green Bay, Wausau, Abbotsford, Superior, Hudson, Eau Claire, La Crosse, Baraboo and Madison.

This grand tour would reveal to the Wisconsin motorist wonders of his home land of which he had not dreamed. It would carry him into that realm of rest, the superior Lake country, through a region as thickly dotted with lakes as the diamonds of a tiara. His travel would be a continuous stretch of scenic beauty and peaceful landscape. He would travel through valleys, and tour through forests of pines. When he had transcribed the circle around the boundary of the state, he could say that in addition to the scenic enjoyment of vacation he had schooled himself in the beauty and wonder of his home land.

The stretch from Milwaukee to Madison takes one to the territory of the Door County. From Madison to La Crosse by way of Baraboo and Madison, through the most famous scenic district of the state and one which, even though the tourist has already traversed it, is always worth another trip. The Wisconsin River is crossed at Sauk City. The route continues to Prairie du Sac, a region noted for its extensive Indian mounds. The journey thence is westward through Elroy, Casshton and St. Joseph. It follows the St. Joseph ridge, through scenery that is considered the acme of beauty in our state.

The view of the Mississippi valley on entering La Crosse is one of the most inspiring on the Father of Rivers. Turning north the tourist heads for Eau Claire and the waterfall country.

Choice of Routes

At Eau Claire he must decide whether he will attempt the trip through the north country to Duluth. In case he has the courage, he turns west to Duluth and then back to Eau Claire, passing through a district thickly studded with lake towns, Clear Lake, Turtle Lake, and on to Trago. His next object points are Superior and Duluth. Having visited Superior he retraces his way to Hawthorn and turns to Ashland whence he begins an arduous, but general vacation trip, southward through Mellen, Park Falls, Prentiss, and Superior. From Superior he turns eastward to Wausau. With Oshkosh as his objective point, he may go by way of Green Bay or through Stevens Point. On his way to Oshkosh he tours the shores of Lake Winnebago. From Fond du Lac he completes the circuit of the Grand Tour to Milwaukee.

This circuit may be cut in half at Eau Claire by striking across to Abbotsford through Chippewa Falls, Stanley and Withee.

An excellent tour that has become very popular is the trip to the Door Peninsula, lying between Lake Michigan and Green Bay. As there are no railroads above Sturgeon Bay, there is in this region a great sense of peace and rest. The development of the State Park between Fish Creek and Ephraim, combined with its picturesque hills and valleys, contributes another attraction to tourists.

A Customary Course Taps Peninsula
Reaching Oshkosh from Milwaukee or other points in the state, it is customary for the tourist to go by way of Green Bay, Sturgeon Bay, Egg Harbor and Fish Creek. On the return he generally goes down the Lake Michigan side, visiting Sallier's Harbor.

From Sturgeon Bay he follows the lake front directly through Algona, Kewaunee, Manitowish and Sallier. The lake country of Southern Wisconsin offers many tours of high worth while, with Fond du Lac, Portage, Baraboo, La Crosse, Prairie du Chien, Madison, Janesville, Lake Geneva and Milwaukee as objective points. This takes one through a district much enhanced by villas and summer houses.

BELOIT IN THROES OF SPIRITED FIGHT FOR NOMINATIONS

Cunningham and Winnegar Are to Be Opposed by Hendley and Rosa for Legislative Nominations.

(By Staff Correspondent.)
Beloit, Aug. 5.—The hotter the weather the more pronounced becomes the fight political in Beloit. The Line City delights in a rousing good red hot political campaign, and this year is no exception. No sooner had L. E. Cunningham, former mayor and present state senator, announced he was a candidate for re-nomination, than the ultra-progressive element, which once claimed Senator Cunningham as their leader, proceeded to hunt for an opponent to him.

They scoured the highways and byways, they even got T. C. Hendley out of bed and dragged him down to a hall where the ultra-progressive candidate H. A. J. Winnegar was holding a conference, to try and make him accept the position as opponent to Cunningham.

Hendley begged off at first, asked for time and delayed action, but they finally persuaded him and he is now in the race. Previous to that they had made overtures to M. P. Richardson and his brother, V. P. Richardson of Janesville, both well known progressives, but they were not interested. They also approached, but he declined to take any urging. He is still suffering from the effects of the stinging defeat that was administered him two years ago by Winnegar in the primary fight when he even lost his own town. He is also suffering from the defeat administered him when he lost out by a big margin in his fight for delegate from the first congressional district to the national republican convention at Chicago against his fellow townsman George Ingersoll.

Rosa had been picked for a high position in the progressive race this year, but his failure to make good on the preliminary center, the delegate question, precluded him as a possible candidate against Congressman H. A. J. Winnegar. He is, however, available as an assembly aspirant against his tried and not found wanting opponent, A. J. Winnegar, one of the best constructive members of the last legislature. It is going to be a merry war at best.

The Beloit Daily News is in a hard position. It is between the devil and the deep sea and takes the middle of the road policy in the following crisis. Whether it will retain this attitude remains to be seen, but it is most certain there is going to be plenty of fun from now on down at the county Line City. The Daily News says: "L. E. Cunningham, for twenty years a close friend of the Daily News, and for a good portion of that period playing with this paper a brand of politics that furnished a lot of human interest, thrills, and the fun that goes with politics, is a candidate for re-election to the senate. His label is somewhat changed, but he is the same likeable man with whom this paper used to sit up nights plotting for the other fellow's defeat. Likewise—

T. C. Hendley, for ten years a part owner of the Daily News, helping to carry out its policies, aiding in its struggle for betterment, and who incidentally, joined in the effort to promote Mr. Cunningham's candidacy, is also a candidate for the honored position that Mr. Cunningham now holds. Mr. Hendley so announced this afternoon. Both of these men stand for much in Beloit civic life. Both are deep and dark—will line up the different factions for them and the Daily News will watch the outcome with interest. Dr. Goff of Elkhorn advised that he would not make it a three-cornered race.

A. J. Winnegar has stripped his coat and accepted the deft of Judge C. D. Rosa and will go to it for the nomination for the assembly. He declares himself a supporter of both Phillip and Jeffris, and if necessary says he will go to defeat under that banner. Mr. Winnegar's friends in the council and in the legislature reveal the fact that he is absolutely courageous whether his judgment was correct or otherwise. This characteristic has made him both friends and strong opponents. The contest between him and the judge gives promise of being exceptionally bitter, more particularly as Judge Rosa himself is not given to allowing to express his convictions, pointedly. J. M. Farnsworth, democrat, will lock horns with the winner of the Cunningham-Hendley primary contest in the November election."

Side Lights on the Circus Business

By D. W. WATT

Former Manager Burr Robbins and Later
Treasurer of Adam Forepaugh Circuses.

In a letter received from the Barnum show a few days ago, the writer gives an interesting story of the two ball teams connected with the show this season. These two teams are made up on one side by the clowns and the other of ticket sellers of the show. They usually play two or three times a week, always between the afternoon and night show.

The writer says that several games during the season have been close finishes. Even all the workingmen there rooting for their favorite team at every game, and in a few instances where they played on baseball grounds, hundreds of citizens would turn out and take great interest in the games as several of the players in both teams have become expert players.

The show is coming west and a short time ago it was intimated that the Sells Bros. and Barnum show would clash for country, the far west, where both shows are billed, but when Charles Ringling was asked of the likelihood of a clash, he simply shook his head and said "Nothing doing. There is plenty of country and the two shows will not interfere with each other in any way."

As the Ringling show has also two ball teams, it may be possible that the likelihood of a clash between the two ball game between the afternoon and night shows, on August 16.

As the coming of the Ringling show is close at hand, perhaps the training and habits of the monkeys and the kangaroo would not be out of place, for of all the cages in the menagerie, these two are the ones that always attract the greatest attention.

No other animal attracts and holds the attention of people longer than the monkey. As a source of delight to the little people, and a study for their elders the monkey stands supreme. This is due no doubt to its grotesque appearance and its close resemblance to man—a caricature of the human race, it seems. Their apparent efforts to mimic the human is at times ludicrous to an extreme.

These animals are usually described in three classes: apes, which have no tails; baboons, which have very short ones, and monkeys, which have very long ones. There are many varieties of each kind. All are inhabitants of the tropics, living principally on fruits. Their agility as climbers is said to excel that of any other animal. They usually travel and live in bands of two hundred or more, the old males in command, the females occupied in caring for the young.

The chimpanzee resembles man more than any other monkey. Its height is sometimes five feet. It can travel quite well on its rear hand-feet, but usually uses all four. Their arms are possessed of tremendous strength and they can break limbs of trees that two ordinary men could not even bend.

The orang-outang is one of the largest of the ape family and sometimes attains a height of five feet. Its arms are of extraordinary length and possessed of great strength. The gorilla is of this species of monkey, and is considered the hardest to train of the larger species.

Many strange things are characteristic of the monkey family, one of which is their ability to discover water at great distances, both above and below ground. When in captivity the monkey is usually gentle, intelligent and affectionate, and learns quite readily. Unfortunately they are heirs to pneumonia and consumption, and are exceedingly delicate. While docile under good treatment, the monkey when sick or excited, is a most ferocious animal. Their great strength and formidable tusks make their attacks something to be much feared.

They are captured in nets and traps. Another method is to place fermented beer where they congregate. Being very fond of this beer, the monkeys soon drink themselves to a degree of intoxication that permits the native negroes to go among them, the monkeys seeming to think the native a larger member of their tribe. Making one of the old monkeys by the hand, the native starts leading it away, when other monkeys nearby grab onto the hands of the lead monkey and in this manner, a whole herd of the drunken animals are lead into captivity.

This strangely formed animal is a native of Australia and some of the smaller islands nearby. They live entirely on vegetable foods and congregate in herds, led by the "old man," the natives' name for the leader.

Its method of traveling is by leaps and when in a hurry or frightened, the leaps cover a distance of twenty feet in length and ten feet in height. In fact so swiftly can this animal get over the ground, that they can out-run a swift greyhound. The tail of the kangaroo is a great asset to its movements and is also a weapon of defense with which a very violent blow can be delivered. They sometimes catch an enemy with their fore-paws and kill it with swift kicks of their hind feet which are armed with strong bony toes. They are also expert swimmers.

The female seldom produces more than one young at a time—an exceedingly diminutive creature, weighing scarcely more than a pound. It is reared in the abdominal pouch of the mother and goes there for sleep and protection until nearly grown.

They are comparatively tame and take to training quite readily.

TAKE DOWN WHITE HOUSE SIGN DURING HOT SUMMER SEASON.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Washington, Aug. 5.—A well-dressed tourist stopped Democratic leader Kern in front of the Capitol.

"What building is that?" he asked. "The Capitol of the United States," replied Kern, with just the suggestion of a smile. "Well, there ain't no sign up," retorted Mr. Tourist. "My dear sir, they take the sign down in hot weather," answered Kern.

MARINE, OR ARE THEY REALLY SUB-MARINES?

Can a citizen volunteer for training in the duties of the United States Marine Corps, holding himself in readiness to take the place of a regular marine killed in war, be properly termed a sub-marine?

That is what the "rookies" now at the marine corps training camp in Parris, Pa., would like to know. Friends of the citizen "sea soldiers" are telling them that a marine, not regularly a marine, although coached in the signals and likely to be called upon to "pitch in" for a regular marine, must necessarily be a sub-marine.

The "rookies" themselves say that Noah Webster overlooked this knotty problem when he wrote his best seller, and they are calling on sports editors to decide the question.

FENNIMORE - LAONS TO USE $100,000 LEFT CITY BY LATE WEALTHY CITIZEN

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Fennimore, Wis., Aug. 5.—The will of William Marsden of this city who died recently, will be admitted to probate the latter part of the month it is believed, and steps will be taken immediately to utilize the $100,000 estate which he left to Fennimore for various purposes.

After special requests, to churches, schools and scholarships for which Mr. Marsden provided, are deducted, about $80,000 will remain for a park and playground which he wished established. One-half of this amount will be used for purchase of the park and the other half for maintenance, according to the terms of the will.

The trustees of the park are instructed in the will to go to Chicago and study the South Park system there and establish "Marsden" park along similar lines.

Special requests are made in the will for Mr. Marsden's old school district; to the Methodist-Episcopal church; to the high school and for a scholarship for the University of Wisconsin.

KENTUCKY PRIMARY ELECTION ON TODAY

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 5.—Candidates for Congress, for Judge of the State Court of Appeals and for various county and municipal offices are to be nominated at a state wide primary election being held today in Kentucky.

In seven of the eleven congressional districts the only aspirant for nomination at the hands of his party as a candidate for Congress is the present incumbent. Six of these districts, the First, Second, Third, Fourth, Fifth and Sixth Congressional districts are represented by Democrats. The Tenth Congressional is represented by a Republican.

PROGRESSIVES MEET: CHAIRMAN KNOWS PARTY DEAD; FOR HUGHES

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Chicago Aug. 5.—Raymond Robins, chairman of the Progressive national convention and candidate of the Illinois progressives for United States senator in 1914, announced today that he would support Charles Evans Hughes, republican nominee for president, declared that it was "manifest" that the progressive party was dead, and asserted that "wise and sincere progressives" should join with republicans in the common struggle for social and industrial justice in city, state and nation.

Here's What You Get When You Tour in a CADILLAC

Before you have ridden a mile in the Cadillac, you find that the qualities which you most desired in a motor car have been developed to a point that is absolutely new to you.

You discover--immediately the car glides into motion--that the quality of quietness has been given a new significance.

You find that neither the engine nor any part of the marvelously efficient mechanism intrudes itself upon you.

You relax into forgetfulness of the means by which you are carried forward.

You find that you are traveling more continuously on direct drive that you had thought possible in any car.

Pick-up from a snail's pace to express train speed is accomplished with so little effort that it is scarcely apparent.

Hills which, before, had compelled a car to strain and labor, seem almost to subside into a level roadway--so easily, so quietly and with so little exertion does the Cadillac surmount them.

Fatigue and exhaustion, which may have characterized your tours in the past, are replaced by a sense of intense exhilaration and keen enjoyment.
